Back from the brink, javelin ace Neeraj rewrites history at World Championships

INDRANEEL DAS @ Chennai

AT this level, the game is played in the head, with its ebbs and flows, almost in a loop. The javelin final at the World Athletics Championships turned out to be one such moment for Neeraj Chopra. Like his coach Klaus Bartonietz said later, it was 90 per cent mental and 10 per cent physical effort. Clawing back from the brink is not always what Neeraj does, but on Saturday, he did that too.

In the tightest of throws, Neeraj revealed his other side: his tough mental fortitude, always considered the hallmark of a champion. Neeraj usually loves to set the pace for others to follow with good throws right in the beginning. The first two throws determine his form and subsequent position on the table. Saturday in Eugene, things were different. He fouled the first throw — the first throw of the final. His second was a modest 82.39 m. He followed it up with 86.37 m. He was away from the medal bracket after three attempts. In contrast, his main competitor, Grenada's Anderson Peters, threw 90.54, 90.21 and 90.46 to emerge as the top performer. Germany's Julian Weber commenced with 86.86 m, while Czech Jakub Vadlejch managed 88.09 m in the third attempt. Like Neeraj explained later: "The competition was very tough and the competitors were performing very well so the situation was very challenging." When the spear left his hand in the fourth attempt, Neeraj knew he had done something remarkable. He took his familiar tumble after releasing the javelin to 88.13 m. He yelled. And clenched his fist above his head. Relief. He knew he would be etching another piece of history, to become the second Indian to win a Worlds medal after Anju Bobby George in 2003. He overtook Vadlejch to move into second spot. "I don't like to keep things for the end because you don't know what will happen. And also others have been doing well here. I just wanted to have a good throw and I knew as soon as the javelin left my hand, it was a good throw," Neeraj said. India's greatest moments in sports seem to be intrinsically entwined with one name, of late, Neeraj. And the recurring theme only reflects the regularity in which the Olympic champion has been turning success into a sublime art. With Commonwealth Games right around the corner, all eyes would be on him, once again. And of course, Peters will be there. Once again. P13

Two B'uru cops, driver killed in AP road accident

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THREE people, including a sub-inspector and constable attached to the Shivajinagar police station, were killed in a road accident at Chittoor in Andhra Pradesh on Sunday. Two other cops, who were part of a team that had gone to nab drug peddlers in AP were injured. The accident occurred around 5 am when the speeding SUV they were travelling in crashed into a steel barrier near Puthalapattu in Chittoor. The victims are Avinash Yadav (29), the SI from Basavakalyan, Anil Mulik (26), the PC from Jamkhandi, and the driver, Maxwell, a resident of Guntakal. P3

Big operation on to cover up flight crash

BANSY KALAPPA @ Bengaluru

THE mystery surrounding crash landing of a microlight, VTUMJ, around 8.30 am on July 16 has been unravelled and sources said the man piloting the aircraft was Capt Amarnath, safety manager of the Government Flying Training School and in charge of Air Traffic Control (ATC). He was flying with a passenger.

The TNIE probe revealed that the aircraft, VTUMJ, is owned by Kumaraswamy. The spot where the aircraft crash landed and the axle broke can be seen and marks are visible of the broken axle scraping the tarmac after the right wheel sheared around 8.35 am when the aircraft crash landed a few seconds after takeoff. A microlight carries around 60 litres of fuel which can be extremely dangerous on impact, experts said. The big question is, despite being a government employee, how was he flying a private aircraft? Second, why was the crash not reported as mandated by law within 24 hours? Third, who gave permission for the aircraft to be dismantled in a hurry and removed from the Jakkur Aerodrome? Why did he not report the incident, having inspected the aircraft? Two eyewitnesses confirmed to TNIE that they saw the accident. The owner of the aircraft, Kumaraswamy, did not bring the accident to the notice of the authorities. When TNIE contacted him, he threw a challenge, saying that no accident occurred and the aircraft is at the hangar of the Government Flying Training School, Jakkur. P2

BHUTAN DOESN'T WANT POOR INDIAN VISITORS?

Be ready to pay ₹1,200 a day as fee over and above other expenses

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

IS Bhutan politely saying 'Indians aren't welcome'? The Himalayan nation recently announced the opening of its borders for tourists from September 23 after two years, but with a hefty levy.

Called sustainable development fee (SDF), it is $15 (₹1,200) per day per Indian and $200 (₹16,000) per person per day for other nationalities. This is in addition to the expenses of travelling, hotel bookings etc. Bhutan apparently wants to experiment with 'high value, low volume' tourism. While tourist hotspots elsewhere, too, are looking at introducing a daily tax on their post-pandemic arrivals, Bhutan's levy is said to be the highest globally. For example, Venice is considering a daily surcharge of $3-$10 per day from next year.

"The new approach is aimed at elevating the travel experience in Bhutan and the industry through fair and healthy competition," the Tourism Council of Bhutan claimed.

But the travel sector in India read it differently. "Bhutan is politely saying 'Indians are not welcome'. The SDF has come as a sharp blow for tourists wishing to travel from India. The cost of airfare has doubled from ₹23,000 to over ₹48,000 as there are no group airfare discounts, no discount for students, no royalty waiver, no family tours," an expert in the travel sector said.

Till now, there was no levy on Indians visiting Bhutan. They just needed any identity proof — not necessarily a passport — to enter the country. In June 2020, Bhutan did impose a surcharge on visiting Indians. It amounted to 12% of the $65 that was being levied on people of other nationalities. By then the Covid lockdown kicked in and Bhutan shut itself up.

"India shares strong diplomatic, political and trade ties with Bhutan, so this levy is not going down well with us. The best way to counter it is by levying a reciprocal fee for Bhutanese nationals who travel to India," the expert suggested. With the outbreak of Covid, tourist arrivals dropped by 90% in Bhutan in 2020. Of the 29,812 tourist arrivals in Bhutan that year, as many as 22,298 were from India.

Whether the ₹1,200 SDF will be levied from Indians or revoked, only time will tell. Till then the tourist sector in India and within Bhutan will be sitting on the edge.

'Historians must write history, not politicians'

At webinar, speakers criticise government for attempting to rewrite history

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

HISTORIANS like Prof Irfan Habib and Prof A Karunanandan criticised the National Education Policy (NEP) 2020 for its attempts to rewrite Indian history poorly. The two historians were speaking at a national webinar organised by the All India Save Education Committee (AISEC) on Sunday, titled 'Distorting Indian History in the Name of Rewriting'.

Karunanandan said that while history is not an unalterable scripture and can be perfected through academic deliberations and exercise, current attempts to rewrite history are being done through abuse of power by diktats of officialdom. "The current government is abusing the UGC to impose a unitary syllabus throughout higher education institutions, for political agenda and not for academic purposes. New discoveries in history must be checked by historians, not by the government and politicians. History is allowed to be interpreted and reinterpreted through academic means, but the current government is trying to push its hidden political agenda into education," he said.

Habib said historians have worked hard to create an accurate account of history, and while there may be inaccuracies, these are based on facts that have been researched. However, the government's interpretations on practices like Sati, or differences between the Aryan and Dravidian races are based on religion, rather than facts. "Indian history must not just be the history of rulers and priests, but the history of all people. Therefore, many new aspects have been added to Indian history to acknowledge women's history, peasant history and intellectual and socio-economic history, which were not regarded as part of the nation's past. It is a disservice to misinterpret civilisations and practices," said Habib.

Alongside Habib and Karunanandan, several professors like Prof Ram Puniyani, retired professor from IIT-Mumbai, Prof Anita Rampal, former dean from Delhi University, and Prof Pradeep Mahapatra, retired professor from Assam, also expressed their criticism on rewriting of history.

BDA's 'costliest' flats will be up for grabs soon

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

THE 'costliest-ever' flats sold by the Bangalore Development Authority (BDA) will be on sale shortly. Located in a prime area like Nagarbhavi on the Outer Ring Road (ORR), each of the 3 BHK flats costs ₹1.04 crore, said BDA sources. Excellent public transport connectivity will be a big plus as this 120-flat housing project is within 1 km of the Mysore Road Metro station with ORR road well connected by buses.

"Our Nagarbhavi project comprises 3 BHK flats built as blocks of ground floor plus 10 floors. A premium of .5% will be charged over the Rs 1.04 crore if one wants a flat from the fifth floor and above due to the fabulous view of the city it offers, which will work out to an extra Rs 50,000," a top BDA official told The New Indian Express. The contractor is in the process of completing the painting work, the official added. Other finishing works were also being done.

"We expect to start online bookings by September. The sale would be done online on a first-come-first serve basis. "We are expecting them to sell like hotcakes. There is enormous interest already and enquiries are pouring in. A skywalk already exists which would connect future residents of these flats to the Outer Ring Road. It also has a locational advantage being near a popular landmark like the Sri Durga Parameshwari Temple," he added. The project will have an open gym with many modern equipment.

Asked about the status of water and power connections, another source said that the departments would approve them only after the entire building is completed.

"We can go in for temporary power connections if there is any kind of delay in obtaining it," he said.

Villas in the offing too

Another project getting ready - the Hunnigere villa - will be the first one by BDA to have 4 BHK houses. It is located between Magadi Road and Tumkur Road. A total of 320 villas, 3 BHK and 4 BHK ones and 320 1 BHK flats will be built. A club house and swimming pool figure among the amenities. "While it has a deadline of March 31, 2023, BDA is confident of completing it and opening it up for sale by January next year," a top official said.

Chitsters to protest 6 per cent GST hike

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka Chitsters' Association will hold a protest on Monday, following the GST Council's proposal to hike GST from 12 per cent to 18 per cent. They allege that imposition of GST is an anomaly, as chit funds are considered Non-Banking Financial Companies (NBFC) under RBI and should be exempt from GST. The recent proposal of the Council to hike GST by 6 per cent comes amid several appeals to exempt the funds from GST altogether.

The association said chit funds cater to the financial needs of middle and low income groups who are unable to access regular banking facilities, and imposition of tax burden those who subscribe to the funds.

"While the consideration received by banks, NBFCs and Micro Finance Institutions (MFI), called interest, is fully exempt from the levy of GST, the consideration received by chit funds, called commission for rendering a similar service, is now proposed to be taxed at 18 per cent. The proposal has come as a rude shock to chit subscribers and the Chit Foremen, as we have been requesting the government to exempt chit fund services from the GST net," said association president S Basalingappa in a statement.

Tunnel aquarium at KSR Station shuts shop; losses blamed

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

THE Aquatic Kingdom at Krantivira Sangolli Rayanna railway station — India's first tunnel aquarium in any railway station — has quietly shut shop due to heavy losses. It had completed a year on July 1 and the contract permitted it to extend it by three years but the owners decided to call it a day.

Without any intimation given by the Bengaluru Railway Division about its closure, passengers heading to it in the concourse area returned after seeing the 'Closed' board.

"We did not get the kind of footfall we had in mind. We suffered huge losses. There are no regrets and it was a big learning experience for us," Syed Hamid Hassan, managing partner, HNI Enterprises, which was awarded the contract by the now wound-up Indian Railway Station Development Corporation told TNIE.

A couple of railway stations in the country emulating it have sought his expertise in this connection. "We might think of setting it up at Sir M Visvesvaraya terminal station in the future as it a world class station and spacious too," Hassan said. While the place attracted between 500 and 600 passengers on a daily basis and more during weekends, HN1 was looking at drawing a daily crowd of 4,000. Asked if the economically priced ticket could have been increased to mobilise resources, Hassan said, "The idea was to let everyone, including those with limited income, partake of the experience inside our Aquatic Kingdom. We deliberately made it a very affordable entry."

Divisional Railway Manager, Bengaluru Division, Shyam Singh said, "The one-year contract period is over. They do not want to extend it for another three years and have shut it."

For a ticket price of Rs 25, Aquatic Kingdom opened up a different world and won rave reviews from passengers. Black Diamond, Sting Ray and High Fin Sharks were present in the tunnel aquarium apart from exotic fish from abroad. A 12-feet-long paludarium, an aquarium with terrestrial plants, aquatic plants and life forms, modelled on the Amazon rainforest, was a big attraction here.

JAKKUR: POLICE PLAINT FILED

Sources confirmed there are call details with ATC of the crash as ATC was communicating with the pilot at that time. Also, the aircraft was dismantled and ferried out for repairs. It was brought back after five days and placed in the hangar. This again is mysterious, considering that the government aerodrome is a restricted area. A police complaint has been filed and the investigation is on. Meanwhile, Director General of Civil Aviation too is conducting its own probe. Both the agencies will seek CCTV footage of entry and exit of the aircraft from the aerodrome. They will also record the accounts of eyewitnesses and pilots who were in the air at the time of the accident, in addition to speaking to the official concerned. When contacted, Basava Reddy, who is the secretary of the Government Flying Training School, refused to provide any details.

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

25th July: We're still in an intriguing Lunar phase, which points to the chance of a bright new start. The details of how, where and when, though, are up to each one of us, depending on our own individual circumstances. Every choice we make opens up a different future! It's also the perfect moment for a spot of forward planning in the personal arena.

ARIES

(Mar 21 - Apr 20)

Overall, this is not a week for clear thinking. However, neither is it a time to let your imagination run riot. The planetary picture can be rather argumentative, but only if you allow trivial events to provoke you. Stick to your principles and the results could be very constructive.

TAURUS

(Apr 21 - May 21)

It's time for some smart ideas. You will gain immeasurably from discussing all your long-term hopes and wishes with as many people as possible. This is hardly the moment to dig your heels in and resist the inevitable. If you do insist in keeping things exactly as they are, then it could hit you in the pocket.

GEMINI

(May 22 - June 21)

You're coming to the end of a brief cycle which has brought a surge in your personal ambitions and welcome professional developments. There'll be one last emotional push at the end of the week, and you'll have the confidence to forge your own path whether partners support you or not.

CANCER

(June 22 - July 23)

No matter how misjudged or angry you feel, think twice before you try and settle any old scores. This is one of those weeks when a chance remark could start a full-scale war, so tread wily. The fact is that someone close to you is under incredible pressure, and they need your help and understanding.

LEO

(July 24 - Aug 23)

Obviously, a great deal has happened in the past which has caused you grief or just plain irritation - in that you're not unusual. However, unless you decide to wipe the slate clean now, some adverse planetary aspects this week may stir up a number of continuing dramas.

VIRGO

(Aug 24 - Sept 23)

What a perplexing time this is. However, planetary movements over the next few days bring welcome changes. In particular, friends and partners who have been out of sorts will regain their composure. But you may also have to patch up a partner's emotional bruises.

LIBRA

(Sept 24 - Oct 23)

You may now need to spend more time on your own and not expend much energy keeping up a front. In addition, relations with children now seem to be more important. Younger family members will show you the way to enjoy yourself, so don't stand on ceremony.

SCORPIO

(Oct 24 - Nov 22)

Your personal stars are under a little pressure, which is why you may need to dispose of some unwanted emotional baggage this week. Today's lunar position emphasises meetings, interviews and unusual discussions - anything which can ease the path of your work and daily routine.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov 23 - Dec 22)

The Moon aligns with highly intuitive sectors of your chart for much of the day, so you should find yourself fully in tune with the general mood of the times. Financial hopes and dreams may occupy much of your attention, especially if you're being overwhelmed by commensurate and a realisation that it's right to plan ahead.

CAPRICORN

(Dec 23 - Jan 20)

You have been forced to redefine your role on a number of occasions over the last year or so, often with great personal difficulty. Over the next few days you'll receive a hint that it was indeed all worth it but, if hidden worries come up, then face them head on.

AQUARIUS

(Jan 21 - Feb 19)

Mars and Venus are currently such a splendid couple of planets that you can afford to feel happy and confident, even if life is a little too complicated. Grasp every nettle in sight and amaze loved ones by backing your imagination, instincts, intuitions and hunches.

PISCES

(Feb 20 - Mar 20)

A group of planets aligned with mysterious regions of your solar chart signifies discreet romantic encounters and quiet social gatherings. Such gentle influences generally suit your mild and sensitive Piscean manner, so appreciate your good fortune.

ED GRILLING SONIA

Angry Congress to hold 'mouna' satyagraha

ENS@Bengaluru

CONGRESS is visibly upset over Enforcement Directorate (ED) questioning its party president Sonia Gandhi. The members to protest against the issue will observe 'mouna satyagraha' on Tuesday.

Sonia has been summoned by the ED officials for alleged money laundering in National Herald case which is vindictive, according to Congress.

KPCC president DK Shivakumar was himself arrested and kept in custody for more than 50 days after he resisted the BJP which was seeking to poach Gujarat MLAs during the election of late Rajya Sabha member Ahmed Patel. He said the satyagraha will be organised from the time Sonia enters the ED office in New Delhi, and will continue till she leaves.

He recalled that his mother was also harassed the same way in an alleged money laundering case, compelling him to approach court with a request to allow the probe at his residence. "However, Sonia Gandhi did not go to the court. She boldly faced the ED and gave her statement," he said.

All MPs, MLAs, former ministers, AICC office-bearers, councillors, office-bearers, and other leaders will take part in the protest in front of the Gandhi statue at Congress Bhavan at 10 am on July 26, he said.

Decision on Sadashiva panel report after parley: DKS

Shivakumar said, "The Sadashiva Commission was set up during the tenure of the then CM SM Krishna, and the report was placed before the cabinet, which could not be implemented. We have spoken to Congress leaders Mallikarjun Kharge and Parameshwara, and will take a decision after taking everyone into confidence." Swamiji of Madiga samaja said, "I have had discussions with all the seers of the Madiga community, and they have blessed us with their support," and added most of the people from the community are working as labourers.

To mollify BSY, party may give his son cabinet berth

Shikaripura Assembly seat likely to go to a local party worker

DEVARAJ B HIREHALLI
@Bengaluru

THE BJP high command, to placate former chief minister BS Yediyurappa, may offer his son BY Vijayendra a berth in the state cabinet with its expansion expected in the first week of August.

After Yediyurappa announced his retirement from electoral politics and declared Vijayendra as the candidate from the Shikaripura Assembly constituency, which he represents now, CM Basavaraj Bommai and Revenue Minister R Ashoka met him over the last few days.

Yediyurappa's announcement on retirement sent shockwaves in party circles as it had planned to make use of his stature in the Veerashaiva-Lingayat community in the 2023 Assembly polls.

The high command may now accede to Yediyurappa's demand to make Vijayendra a minister and the process will begin with Vijayendra being made an MLC in the Legislative Council election on August 11, party sources said.

In fact, Vijayendra was a strong contender for an MLC seat when the election from the Assembly was held in June 3 this year. But he was denied a chance, shocking Yediyurappa. Four party candidates were elected unopposed then.

Now, there are plans to give the Shikaripura seat to one of the local party workers and shift Vijayendra to Varuna to bolster party base in the Old Mysuru region, sources said. Whether Yediyurappa agrees to this strategy is the big question. If that plan materialises, Yediyurappa's daughter BY Arunadevi, all-India president of women's wing of Veerashaiva Mahasabha, may lobby for Shikaripura seat through her father. But the high command may not agree to it, sources said.

When the cabinet is expanded next, CP Yogishwar, Ramesh Jarkiholi, Arvind Limbavali, N Mahesh and KS Eshwarappa are likely to get berths, while Social Welfare Minister Kota Srinivasa Putary may have to sacrifice his berth, sources said.

Forums vow to set aside politics for Siddu birthday event's success

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Chikkamagaluru

LEADERS of various organisations and forums have announced their support for the 75th birthday celebrations of former CM Siddaramaiah in Davanagere on August 3.

A meeting of district AHINDA Federation was convened at Kanaka Bhavan, where leaders of various parties said that they will cooperate to ensure that the event is a success.

Speaking on the occasion, district BSP president KT Radhakrishna and general secretary Paramesh said that Siddaramaiah, with his secular credentials and pro-people concern, is an asset to all sections of the society. BSP workers will also participate in the programme. Leader of Urs community Teguru Jagadeesh described the former CM as torchbearer of the backward

Every leader has a unique style of administration. Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa commanded huge political authority and was known for his go-getter approach, while his successor Basavaraj Bommai's style seems to be more in the executive leadership category.

As the Bommai government celebrates its first anniversary on July 28, its efforts to push development as an agenda and take administration to the doorsteps of people, have been to some extent shadowed by controversies.

Bommai, who has a keen eye for detail, started many new initiatives, including the flagship programme 'Raita Vidya Nidhi' scholarship to help children of farmers continue their education. Around 90 per cent of budget announcements were set in motion by issuing Government Orders — an achievement as governments usually dilly-dally over implementing budget announcements.

Unlike Yediyurappa's tenure, Covid-19 challenges had eased considerably for Bommai. The economy, too, had recovered to some extent. Bommai got an opportunity to head a stable government with full backing from the central leadership, which announced going to the 2023 assembly polls under his leadership.

Now, as the Bommai government tries to increase its speed and burnish its report card as his party prepares for the polls, a series of controversies has damaged his government's image — like the textbook row, police sub-inspectors recruitment scam, and contractors' association's allegations of 40 per cent corruption.

The government's response to a host of other issues, including the hijab row and minority community traders prevented from doing business near temples, drew flak. The government appeared to be in a reactive mode as fringe groups were setting the agenda. The Anti-Conversion Bill given effect by way of an ordinance and not after debating in the Legislative Assembly, angered many. But the government lists it as one of its major achievements.

Notwithstanding the possibility that many allegations against the government may not stick, the way they took centre-stage in public discourse has impacted the general perception about the administration.

In politics, perception matters. Even more so in an election year. The opposition Congress, which was in total disarray after losing the 2018 assembly polls and its disastrous show in the 2019 Lok Sabha elections, seems to be making most of the opportunity. Although the grand old party has its share of problems — including internal bickering over the CM's post — recent polls indicate the Congress is managing to regain some lost ground.

Except in the recent Rajya Sabha elections, in which BJP managed to win three seats though it had the numbers to comfortably get only two, BJP faced a tough contest from the Congress in all other elections in the last year or so.

In the Council polls, BJP failed to retain its seat in North Karnataka, a Lingayat heartland, and also lost an opportunity to make a mark in Old Mysuru region. The region continues to be its focus area, and key to improving its performance in the assembly polls to achieve its Mission-150.

Well, it's not just the BJP, the Congress too has set itself a target of winning 150 seats, and the Janata Dal (Secular) is also talking of coming to power on its own.

At the end of one year, Bommai and the BJP may be satisfied with the government's development push. But it must think whether it gained any political advantage it didn't have a year ago. As elections near, the party's central leadership will expect the government to up its game, while people look for a perceptible change in the administration.

Ironically, while the government is required to go full throttle and make a mark in all sectors, Bommai is unable to expand his cabinet. A crucial portfolio like Rural Development and Panchayat Raj (RDPR), which oversees the Prime Minister's flagship programme Jal Jeevan Mission to provide clean drinking water in rural areas, is without a full-time minister after KS Eshwarappa's resignation. Bengaluru Development portfolio, which is with CM Bommai, also requires full attention, but this is a problem for the CM, who also holds the Finance portfolio.

Despite many announcements and some on-ground changes effected with a short-sighted approach, there is no end to citizens' problems. Problems like never-ending traffic woes, pot-holed roads, or the city getting inundated with a few minutes of rain, persist. Insiders say Bommai often asks his officials to work like a football team that is constantly in action on the ground. It will do well for the government as well as for the party, if his entire team, including ministers, works cohesively and ups the game.

CHIEF Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Sunday released the Dayananda Sagar Institutions' handbook on the birth centenary of its founder R Dayananda Sagar.

"He was an institutional man and was way ahead of his time. Creating an educational empire he built various institutions in various fields," Bommai said.

He urged people to be achievers and not only run after success. "A person will eventually become successful and invite success for others. An achiever like Dayananda Sagar is immortal as death is not the end for such a person," Bommai added.

Calling the institution a tree that was laid by the founder, the CM urged to water it regularly for it to live long and further admired the work of his sons who built an educational society over the foundation their father created.

Passion behind 1983 World Cup victory, says Srikanth

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Mysuru

FORMER Indian cricket team captain Krishnamachari Srikanth said that it was immense passion for the game which enabled the Indian team to vanquish the mighty West Indies and lift the 1983 World Cup at the Lords.

Speaking at the Mysuru Literature Festival 2022, organised by the Mysuru Literary Forum Charitable Trust and Mysuru Book Clubs 2015 on 'Life's Lessons from the 1983 World Cup Victory', Srikanth said, "The first quality to do something is to have passion. It is not about money or success. In the 1983 World Cup, captain Kapil Dev had tremendous passion, and unless you are passionate about something, you cannot be a winner. He was the one who made us win against the champions (West Indies). Kapil's words were if we have beaten them once, we can beat them again," he said.

"There is so much competition today. Everybody is on T20 mode. We have to change our attitude, and adapt to the situations. When India was 17 for 5 against Zimbabwe, it was Kapil's adaptability that made him smash 175 and turn the tide in India's favour."

'Lost captaincy due to arrogance'

Srikanth advised youngsters, "When you look back in life, you have to be satisfied, not by money or fame but by how you lived your life happily." He added, "I make a fool of myself and laugh. I do unorthodox things. Let us always be energetic and passionate. Cricket has taught to be humble and kind to everyone. Cricket has taught us not to be overconfident, arrogant and egoistic. I lost my captaincy because of my arrogance but later I changed my attitude."

Talking about South Indian food, Srikanth said that the meals are the best diet it has all the healthy ingredients. Do not follow the Western culture much but take the best of it, he suggested.

Held discussions on state projects: CM

New Delhi/Bengaluru: The BJP Chief Ministers' Council meeting deliberated on the performance of states in implementing development projects. In case of Karnataka, upgradation of ITIs, Kissan Samman, measures taken to drive India towards a $5-trillion economy and implementation of New Education Policy came up for discussion, CM Basavaraj Bommai told media persons in New Delhi. Prime Minister Narendra Modi has given some suggestions and guidance regarding the projects. The next meeting will be held in October. Replying to a question on his itinerary in Delhi, Bommai said he is scheduled to participate in the swearing-in ceremony of President-elect Droupadi Murmu on Monday, and then he will meet Union Sports minister. He is also set to call on Union ministers Piyush Goyal and Bhupendra Yadav.

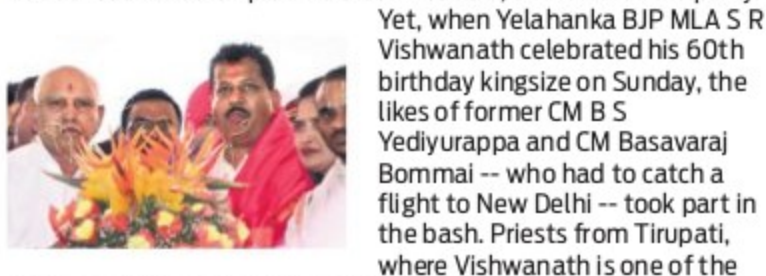

Leaders dream on, only caste matters

Despite the BJP going all out to unite and polarise Hindus on the basis of religion in Karnataka, it seems to be back to square one as every leader in the state wants to be recognised through caste, especially with election season round the corner. In fact, senior leaders of all political parties are nursing dreams of the CM's gaddi, and hoping that community power will propel them to it. KPCC President D K Shivakumar sought the backing of his Vokkaliga community in Old Mysuru region, at an event where he shared the dais with former CM H D Kumaraswamy, also a Vokkaliga. Kumaraswamy, who himself nurses dreams of being the supreme community leader, did not react. BJP national general secretary CT Ravi, who threw barbs at DKS and the Congress, saying it had stooped to caste politics to gain power, claimed he is proud of being a Vokkaliga. His party bosses are also looking at either him or any other Vokkaliga leader to be appointed BJP state president. Former CM B S Yediyurappa, Veerashaiva Lingayat supremo, dreams of making son Vijayendra like him. And if this isn't enough, Union Minister for Social Justice Anekal Narayanaswamy, a Dalit, wanted to know why there is talk of only two major castes when it comes to the hot seat.

Big B-Day bashes in a poll year

When it comes to glorification of political leaders, none lags behind, regardless of political shade. Former CM Siddaramaiah's 75th birthday, slated to be held at Davanagere on August 3, was denounced as worship of individual leaders, and bad for the party.

Yet, when Yelahanka BJP MLA S R Vishwanath celebrated his 60th birthday kingsize on Sunday, the likes of former CM B S Yediyurappa and CM Basavaraj Bommai — who had to catch a flight to New Delhi — took part in the bash. Priests from Tirupati, where Vishwanath is one of the

Zoo Bear popularity spirals after return

Those who step out of jail seldom get a warm welcome, as there is still some stigma attached to being behind bars, but not for Zoo Bear aka Alt News Zubair, who's been getting a rock star reception in Bengaluru. His list of relatives, friends and admirers has burgeoned exponentially, thanks to over three weeks spent in prison. While some break into a eulogy of his achievements, hundreds are generous with support for him, pat him on the back and pose for a selfie. Praise has poured in on mail and WhatsApp, sent through friends as his phones are still with the authorities. Invitations for lunch and dinner have shot up too. For this, Zoo Bear has to thank the ruling dispensation, which was out to get him, but instead, got him a massive fan following.

K'TAKA STRUGGLES TO SET UP MENTAL HEALTH INFRA

KARNATAKA is struggling to consolidate a robust and uniform mental health management structure across the state to enable affordable and easy access for common people. This is despite mental issues increasing especially due to Covid-19 pandemic-induced impacts on society across age groups and social strata. As per government records, over 10 lakh people annually seek mental health care in public institutions in Karnataka. Common mental disorders like depression and general anxiety disorders constituted 34% of the cases while severe mental disorders (like schizophrenia, bipolar disorder) and alcohol and substance abuse constituted 18.4% and 11.2% of the cases, respectively.

Through the pandemic and its impacts, the situation has worsened. Compromised education, lockdown effects on elders, adverse impact on interpersonal relationships, effects on job security and economic fallout have compounded the mental health situation in the state, as much as across India which has just 0.75 psychiatrists per 1 lakh population against the required 3 per 1 lakh population. This is well below the 6 per 1 lakh population in some developed countries.

Moreover, pre-pandemic figures indicate a mere 0.37% of Karnataka's budget health expenditure was allocated to mental health. Here too, only 74.4% of the funds allocated to District Mental Health Programme (DMHP) were utilised. There are districts which have exhibited public-private initiatives in an effort to consolidate mental health management programmes. But more inclusive steps involving stakeholders are needed.

The Indian Constitution and the Supreme Court point to rights of individuals to mental health. But the reality is far from that.

THE ON-GROUND STATUS

There is a severe scarcity of psychiatrists in the twin districts of Chitradurga and Davanagere. Except two psychiatrists and two counsellors who are working on contract basis, there is no regular recruitment.

In Davanagere, the district has one psychiatrist and one counsellor at District Government Hospital. Along with this, there is a district mental health programme officer at Davanagere, who is recruited on a contract basis and every year his or her appointment is renewed as he or her is recruited under the National Health Mission programme.

The number of patients in private and general hospitals varies from 100 each day to 3000 each month.

In Chitradurga, except a district level mental health programme officer and a counsellor, there are no specialised sanctioned posts at taluk and public health centre (PHC) level. Every month there are about 1,500-2000 cases that are screened at the district hospital.

The Madikeri District Hospital has just one counsellor and a psychiatrist appointed to handle mental illness cases. "There are no appointments of counsellors at PHCs. The team from the district hospital conducts surveillance frequently and visits the taluk and rural health centers for consultation," says District Health Officer Dr Venkatesh.

The number of private counselling centers is less than a handful. Residents rely on hospitals and clinics in Mysuru or Mangaluru to address mental health issues. Online support is also sought by many.

There are no psychiatrists or counsellors appointed in the government taluk hospitals and PHCs in Belagavi. Only one psychiatrist works at the District Hospital.

Senior psychiatrist Dr Bheemsen Takkalaki says, "Mental health problems are huge as per the recent National Mental Health Survey by NIMHANS. The government has brought improvements by appointing psychiatrists in district hospitals but a lot more needs to be done. Awareness needs to be created among people — especially in rural areas — that there are reasons for mental health problems. There are wrong beliefs among people that mental illness is caused by black magic, and about side effects of medicines for mental disorders."

Despite the introduction of the National Mental Health Programme (NMHP), public health services for mental patients in Dakshina Kannada have not improved. Except for a ward in Wenlock District Hospital, there are no government facilities in the district for mentally ill patients. A clinical psychiatrist with five decades of experience in the field says incidents of families abandoning persons with mental illness is on the rise. In most cases, affected men reach the beggars rehabilitation home in Pachanady, while women find their way to facilities run by NGOs and missionaries.

"Taking care of mentally-ill patients is difficult. But it is the responsibility of families. If they are treated with love and care, they will improve," says Prof Hilda Rayappa, a social activist.

UDUPI SETS A PPP EXAMPLE

Udupi has better facilities for mental health treatment due to public-private partnership. Psychiatrists from Kasturba Hospital, Manipal and Dr AV Baliga Memorial Hospital, Dod-danagudde, have been roped in to conduct screening camps and counselling sessions across Udupi district. Sources say private doctors under this PPP method offer free consultations and issue appropriate medicines.

Psychiatrists from Kasturba Hospital and Dr AV Baliga Memorial Hospital visit various places in the neighbouring regions each month for consultation and treatment.

This ensures psychiatrists are available in all PHCs, CHCs in the district at least once a month.

Parivartana Psycho-Social Rehabilitation Centre in Kota conducts a free screening camp for mental health issues on the first Wednesday of every month. Periodic one-week training is given to doctors at PHCs and CHCs. Even nurses, ASHAs are trained in the district to identify and refer to the mental health issues among the people in the community at the grass root level. Minor issues are managed at the PHC level by doctors trained in counselling skills, while patients with severe mental illness are referred to the district hospital.

There are several mental health private practitioners in the district. Dr Ravindra Munoli, Associate Professor, Department of Psychiatry, KMC, Manipal says substance abuse cases are common of late. There has been an increase in cases pertaining to anxiety and depression and attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD). "They come for treatment quite early due to awareness," he says.

STATE GEARING UP

The concept of Mano Chetana clinics at PHCs was started in 2019 and MoUs were signed with Nimhans for assistance and case referrals.

Randeep D, Commissioner, Health Department, says Mano Chetana clinics are held every Tuesday at PHCs, where trained doctors counsel those seeking help and prescribe medicines.

Since some psychiatric medicines are costly, and fearing this, those seeking help do not approach doctors. Randeep says e-consultation platforms have been created, wherein assistance from experts in Nimhans is being taken. As a pilot, the centres for brain health are being set up in Chikkaballapur, Jayanagar (in Bengaluru) and Kolar.

On whether doctors in PHCs are adequately qualified to prescribe medicines and explain the situation to patients, Dr Rajini P, Deputy Director Public Instructions (Mental Health), Karnataka health department, says doctors are MBBS and trained. "You do not need a psychiatrist for common psychological problems. Mostly, a person just needs someone to talk to. If you do not treat a patient at the PHC, then the burden on institutes like NIMHANS increases. With this being the aim, the NMHP was launched. Karnataka is the first state to have an integrated mental health centre."

She says counselling and observation are done over two weeks, after which if the person is not improving then signs of biological problems become visible and Mano Chetana centres help.

Dr KV Trilokchandra, Special Commissioner, Health, Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP), says the brain health initiative was taken up by NIMHANS to identify people with mental health needs. Doctors in the PHCs have been sensitised to identify those needing help when they come for health issues. A protocol on how to handle patients has also been laid out. There are many psychosomatic and hypochondriasis cases. So far one batch of doctors in Bengaluru, in the south zone, has been trained by NIMHANS to address such cases. The training is now being extended to other zones and PHCs.

WHATABOUTERY IN ED QUESTIONING OF CONG LEADERSHIP

By all accounts, Congress president Sonia Gandhi did well during the first round of the Enforcement Directorate's questioning in the National Herald money laundering case. Her responses were quick and firm compared to son Rahul Gandhi's ponderous answers during his questioning by the ED spread over 50 hours earlier. Rahul changed his written statement at least thrice, perhaps on the advice of a battery of legal eagles during the fairly long lunch breaks he took to call on his ailing mother in the hospital ostensibly. Sonia knew what to expect as Rahul gave her a complete rundown on the line of questioning, and also since the same three-member team questioned both of them. Given her advanced age, 75, and history of ailments, the ED did not push her too hard, though there were conflicting accounts on who took the initiative to call it a day.

Whatever it was worth, the ED action came as a godsend for the moribund party that had almost forgotten it was the principal Opposition in the country. After its Udaipur 'chintan baithak', the Congress appears to have dusted itself up as it fights the perception battle. In Jairam Ramesh, the party has a new media head who is a razor-sharp intellectual and a quick-witted communicator. If the Trinamool Congress caught the grand old party leaden-footed when the presidential elections were announced, with Mamata Banerjee seeking to strengthen her case to lead a united opposition, the Congress got its act together in the vice-presidential polls, getting its candidate nominated and forcing Didi to do weird contortions to explain her party's decision to abstain from voting.

While the Congress claims it is fighting political vendetta, the roots of the face off lie in the harsh treatment the then Gujarat chief minister Narendra Modi got under the UPA regime when Sonia was the de facto head of the government. The BJP argues 10, Janpath did everything possible to frame Modi in the 2002 Gujarat riots case but failed, so it's payback time. But the fact remains that whataboutery does little to serve the public good. There are much more grave matters that ought to hold the nation's attention instead. The urge to score petty political points ought to be eschewed.

PROSPERITY LEVELS MATTER, NOT GDP SIZE

India's GDP is becoming bigger than France's, and closing in on the UK is not a matter of much pride if it continues to sit 'pretty' among the low-middle-income countries. In fact, the whole focus on India becoming a $5 trillion or $10 trillion economy is meaningless if the country cannot relatively grow its per capita income levels. India's per capita GDP, which is an indicator of general income levels in the country, was $2,277 in 2021, as per the World Bank. It is just slightly better than the Republic of Congo ($2,214), Angola ($2,137) and Nigeria ($2,085), while countries like the Solomon Islands ($2,337), Ghana ($2,445) and Bangladesh ($2,500) are ahead of it.

Of course, we may tom-tom the size of our GDP, and the fact that it is now bigger than Italy, France and may soon go past the UK and Germany, we are only acknowledging the half-truth. The size of the economy is not the same as prosperity levels. The per capita GDP of France ($43,518) is 20 times, and that of Italy ($35,515) is 17 times that of India. Back home in India, UP is second or third (and it has been in that position for quite a long time) in terms of the size of its GDP but is second in per capita GDP (higher than that of Bihar). Even Jharkhand has a better per capita GDP than UP.

For a country as large as India, with 50% of the population in the 0-25 years age category, it will grow at a relatively higher pace than most other economies. In fact, the GDP growth rate differential between India and any European country could very well be 400-500 basis points or even more for a long time.

The government should, therefore, focus more on increasing the income levels in the country and getting rid of the tag of a low-middle-income country (countries with a per capita GDP of up to $2,582). The target should also be to make India's growth more inclusive. A country where those earning ₹25,000 or more constitute the top 10% of the income earners is not doing great justice to a big part of the population.

In a parliamentary democracy like India, the Opposition should have the space to hold transparent discussions. If this is not allowed, what follows is noise, not debate

REVAMP RULES TO MAKE PARLIAMENT DISCUSSIONS OPEN

KAPIL SIBAL

Senior lawyer and member of Rajya Sabha

Our Prime Minister claims to be forward looking. His passion for technology is evident. He extols its virtues for the delivery of public goods. And yet, he has no appetite to reform archaic and regressive procedures when it comes to the functioning of Parliament. He uses power structures outside Parliament to diminish the Opposition and is equally adept at using them within Parliament to silence the Opposition.

If the Prime Minister is so passionate about reforming our political structure by embracing modern systems of governance, he should be equally passionate about reforming parliamentary procedures to make them consistent with the underlying fundamentals of our liberal democracy. While modernity and digitisation are welcome, there is urgent need to reform procedures that cater to the absolutism of decision making within the House.

Democracy cannot function unless the Opposition is allowed space to air its grievances. Under prevailing procedures, the Opposition may demand a discussion on matters it considers necessary but the Minister for Parliamentary Affairs may choose not to agree.

In a parliamentary democracy, the Opposition has a vital and constructive role to play in matters relating to the clearing of legislative proposals as well as raising issues to bring the government to account. This fundamental premise is key to a functioning liberal democracy. In this context, any procedure which allows the government to determine the issues to be discussed, when and under which rule are they to be discussed, is antediluvian. This allows for the government to brush aside any proposal made by the Opposition in which the government might find itself, in the course of discussions in Parliament, to be on the back foot. So what follows is noise, not debate.

I remember the words of my good friend late Arun Jaitley, the then Leader of Opposition during the UPA years, when he said that obstructing the House was part of "parliamentary strategy". This was when sessions were washed away by an intransigent BJP. The then ruling party used the very same rules to its advantage. If obstruction is a matter of "parliamentary strategy", then it is obvious that the government "protesteth too much" when the Opposition seeks a discussion under a particular rule. Prevailing parliamentary procedures cut at the very root of democratic processes fundamental to running the House. We must find ways to ensure that while legislative proposals are debated and cleared, the Opposition has its say in discussing matters of its choice.

There is no liberal parliamentary democracy in which the Opposition is belittled and stomped on in the manner in which it is done in India. In the UK, days are set apart in Parliament for the Opposition to discuss issues of its choice. The Treasury Benches there have no veto power on the subjects for discussion. Such procedures eventually help in the functioning of Parliament.

Rules which prohibit discussions on the ground that the matter is sub-judice did not stand in the way when Bofors was discussed in Parliament even while the investigation was on. However, when it came to a discussion on Pegasus or for that matter on the Rafale deal, the Treasury Benches did not allow any debate in the House on the ground that the matter was sub-judice.

Everyone is in favor of free speech. ... Some people's idea of it is ... to say what they like, but if anyone else says anything back, that is an outrage

Winston Churchill

SOURAVADIP SHINHA

The rules of procedure should be altered setting apart, for starters, one day a week for Opposition to choose any matter on which it seeks a discussion and answers from the government. On the other hand, the Opposition must ensure that discussions on proposed Bills are consistent with prevalent norms and cleared as per laid down procedures.

Many a times, we find that the Bills which are introduced need to be thoroughly vetted not just because of the complexity of issues involved but because of their impact when cleared. Nowadays, it is rare that Bills waiting to be enacted into law are referred to the Standing Committees of Parliament.

The other important issue, and I am here referring to fundamental issues, is the need for the Prime Minister to answer questions in the House. One day in a week should be reserved for that purpose. We see that happen in other jurisdictions where the Prime Minister shows no hesitation in answering questions and is indeed obliged so to do under rules of procedure.

During recent proceedings in the British Parliament, Prime Minister Boris Johnson was seen answering uncomfortable questions raised not just by the Leader of Opposition but others as well.

No Member of the House of Commons interrupted the proceedings even though serious allegations of impropriety were raised regarding his conduct in matters of governance. Unfortunately, in India, not only do the rules of procedure not allow such open questioning but the questions themselves require to be admitted for which answers are placed in the House only on the morning of the day assigned for answering them.

Since 2014, I for one have not seen any desire by the Prime Minister to engage himself in the House to answer questions during Question Hour.

There should be a complete revamp of the rules so as to make the processes of clearing legislations as well as discussion on issues, open, transparent and outcome-oriented.

A former Chief Justice of India once said that on occasions, you need noisy Judges. That may be a debatable proposition. But a noisy Parliament, which loses valuable time because the Treasury Benches will not allow the Opposition the space needed in the functioning of parliamentary democracy, is an unhealthy trend. We need a constructive Opposition, a responsive Government and rules that are flexible enough to give space to both. The arrogance of power results in a noisy House.

SUCH GOINGS-ON IN SHRAVAN

RENUKA NARAYANAN

FAITHLINE

Shravan, the rain month in July-August, partly overlaps with 'Ramayana month' in Kerala, when the epic is retold in homes and temples. This practice was apparently undertaken as a monsoon cure for when people were forced to stay home and took not only ill but also grew bored and depressed.

In the north, many Hindus avoid meat, eggs, onion and garlic during Shravan. The kavadiyas or kavad-bearers leave North Indian towns and villages to walk to the Ganga to fetch holy water for their respective temples.

A kavad is a bamboo pole with a decorated arch that pilgrims carry on their shoulders to their destination. We can see the kavadi tradition in Tamil Nadu as well, along the six-temple pilgrim circuit sacred to Murugan called the Aaru Padai Veedu, and hear old walking songs called kavadichindu.

It is curious how India is astir during this difficult period, whether through Ramayana readings, personal dietary hold-backs or going the distance with a mission in mind. The devout public along the highways of the north goes all out to acquire merit by feeding the marching kavadiyas. There are disturbing videos and news reports each year of unruly kavadiya youth, but many sincere and well-behaved pilgrims are trudging gamely on.

Meanwhile, as a student of Indian culture, I have a theory about the kavadiya tradition in the north. Since most Indian cultural rites have a practical core, it seems safe to assume that the kavadiya tradition, like the Ramayana readings in Kerala, has its roots in the rains.

We can imagine the fights that must have broken out between the bored young bucks of Indian villages during the stay-home month of Shravan. So, Mission Kavadiya was probably invented and put across society to send them out on a group adventure to fetch water from the Ganga for the Shivrings in their local temples. The public was co-opted to feed them along their route as an act of merit. And off they went en masse, leaving their villages in relative peace until they returned as heroes bearing holy water.

This theory in no way undermines the piety of the mission. What's not to like about fetching Ganga water for your temple?

Rather, it leaves one marveling at how Indian society organised itself as a 'way of life', unremarked today except when some kavadiyas break the law. They are absolute kings of the road when they enter the national capital. The police halt regular traffic to let their battalions cross, much to the annoyance of the citizenry.

It leaves one marvelling at how Indian society organised itself as a 'way of life', unremarked today except when some kavadiyas break the law. They are absolute kings of the road when they enter the national capital. The police halt regular traffic to let their battalions cross, much to the annoyance of the citizenry

So, the uninvolved public (like I) is forced willy-nilly to participate in Shravan, which cannot be a desirable thing. What I also don't relate to is the noise pollution from kavadiya camps that blare 'disco bhajans'.

However, if pilgrimage in itself is an old Indian practice, there are bound to be old stories attached to it. A tale I would like to retell is about Padmapada, one of Adi Sankara's four chief disciples. The story goes that Padmapada yearned to go on pilgrimage and begged hard for permission.

Acharya, as Adi Sankara is still popularly called, tried at first to dissuade Padmapada by saying that the most sacred place was near one's guru, where Padmapada was already established.

Notwithstanding his own adventurous travels as a small child, Acharya warned Padmapada of the difficulties likely to befall him: that travel could be stressful without a guarantee of shelter, food and daily needs; that if he fell sick, there would be nobody to care for him in unknown lands and that it was unwise to trust strangers in case they stole his work or belongings.

But since the disciple's heart was set on journeying, the guru sent him off with his blessings and a quantity of practical advice. After visiting tirthas and kshetras in the north, it is said that Padmapada turned south and visited Kalahasti, Ekambareswar at Kanchipuram, Chidambaram and Ramsetu.

En route to Ramsetu, Padmapada met relatives at Srirangam who asked him to stay for a few days and give them the benefit of spiritual discourse. Among other things, Padmapada spoke of the spiritual merit obtained by householders who supported travellers. That is because pilgrimage requires physical and mental endurance and a householder can turn his own home into a tirtha with his hospitality.

The halt was not without incident. Padmapada left a treatise he had written in his uncle's care until his return from Ramsetu. But his uncle disliked it because it argued against ritualistic practices and burnt it.

Thinking of Padmapada all those years ago, it is hard to look at the neon-lit halts sprouting on our roads this month for the kavadiyas' comfort and not feel a flash of sympathy after all for the good 'Shravanites'.

CJI and TV debates

This is with reference to the news Media running kangaroo courts, biased shows: CJI (July 24). TV channels mainly choose to give precedence to religion and politics when it comes to their debates. By inviting speakers with diametrically opposite views, they are trying to spice the debate up to make it more sensational and interesting for the viewers. Ultimately, in the name of allowing free speech and opinions, a mountain springs out of a molehill. And of course, the impressionable viewer gets influenced by these ideologies. As advised by the CJI, visual media needs to implement self-regulation measures so that it holds some level of accountability along with the much-needed free speech.

Judicial cleanup

This is with reference to the news Media running kangaroo courts, biased shows: CJI (July 24). Our judicial system is also functioning like a kangaroo court. If we look at the cases of Nupur Sharma and Mohammed Zubair, we can see that the latter was subject to judges' sympathy. However, Sharma was treated harshly, with offensive language being hurled at her. Also, when the CJI blamed the pendency of cases on vacancies, there was actually laxity on the part of the collegium in identifying and recommending the names. So, while they may take up the matter about media, they must also look inward.

Gandhian philosophy

This is with reference to MPs should follow Gandhian philosophy: Kovind at farewell (July 24). Outgoing President Ram Nath Kovind called Parliament a "temple of democracy" and told leaders that they must push partisan politics aside and keep the country's interests and people's welfare as priorities. I think his advice is on point and that the MPs and MLAs must ardently work towards following it.

Girl and train accident

Apropos of Student hit by train dies in front of the mom (July 24). This incident is so tragic and shocking for the poor mother. To see your child die right in front of you is a sorrow that cannot be solved. The girl was trying to cross the railway track to reach her school bus that was parked on the other side. But there is a lesson to learn from this tragedy—people must be aware and realise that it is dangerous to cross railway tracks.

Sri Lanka's sob story

Apropos of Audacity of democracy: By the people, but not for the people

(July 24). Sri Lanka is an example for the rest of the world. The short shelf life of a seemingly 'charismatic' leader, the short-sighted policies, etc.—all this landed the country in a hot soup—politically, economically and socially.

Shortage of IAS officers in 26 states

The number of officials currently stands at 5,317 against the sanctioned strength of 6,789

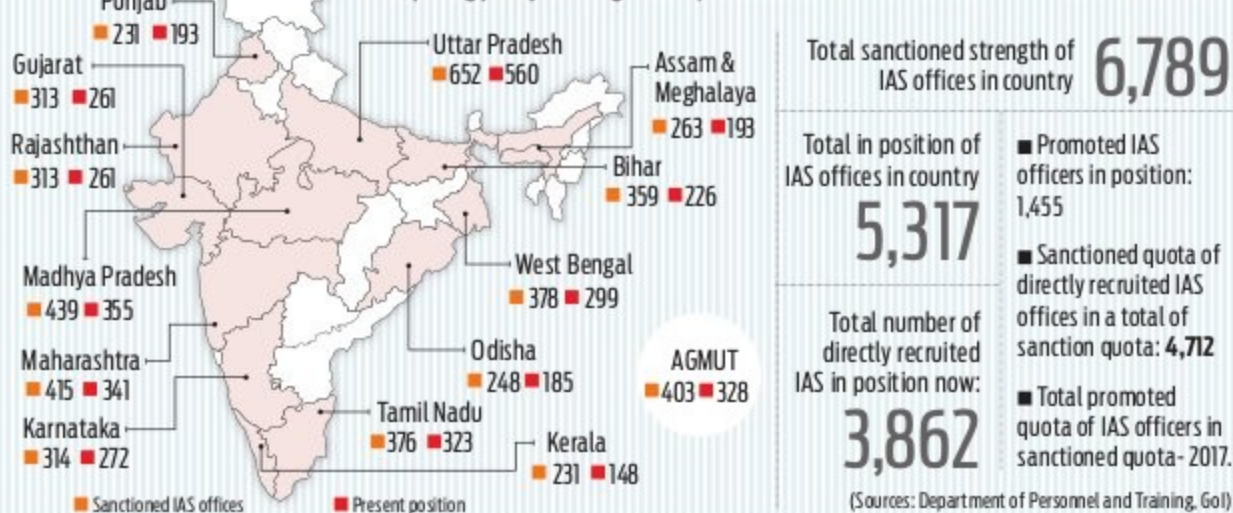

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @NewDelhi

AT least 26 states, including Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, AGMUT (Arunachal Pradesh-Goa-Mizoram and Union Territories), Tamil Nadu, Bihar and West Bengal, have less number of Indian Administrative Services (IAS) officials than the sanctioned strength, at a time when India is the first country in the world where a unique model, called 'National Standards for Civil Services Training Institutions' (NSCST), has recently been launched for training of civil servants.

The number of IAS officials currently stands at 5,317 against the sanctioned strength of 6,789. According to data, among the sanctioned strength of 6,789, 4,712 are to be recruited through UPSC while the remaining via state civil services. The gap between sanctioned and available strength is hampering policy-

STATE-WISE REQUIREMENT OF BUREAUCRATS

The increasing gap between sanctioned and available strength of bureaucratic personnel is hampering policy-making and implementation of national welfare schemes in states making and implementation of national welfare schemes in the states. "In almost all states, one civil servant is holding additional charge of more than two or three departments. So officials don't get enough time to go through files," a chief secretary-rank official said. Although the Union government claims to have started recruiting 180 IAS officers directly annually since 2012 following the recommendation of the Baswan Committee, the shortages still persist. According to department of personnel and training data submitted to the Rajya Sabha on July 21, 898 IAS officials have been recruited through civil services exam from 2016 to 2020. In 2020, BJP-ruled Uttar Pradesh got the maximum 15 IAS officers through Civil Service Examination followed by AGMUT cadre with 14, W. Bengal and TN each with 13, Bihar and Maharashtra 10. Official data shows UP has 560 of ficers against the sanctioned strength of 652. MP has 355 officials against the sanctioned strength of 439, while Maharashtra has 341 against 415.

"Out of a total strength of 5,317 civil servants, 3,862 are selected through UPSC and the remaining 1,455 are from state civil services. Among the 26 states, UP has the highest number of 387 UPSC-recruited officers, followed MP with 258, AGMUT with 235 and Maharashtra with 232," said an official.

YOUTH DAY

New youth policy in MP, Azad statue to be unveiled

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

@NewDelhi

MADHYA Pradesh Chief Minister Shrivraj Singh Chauhán on Saturday announced a novel youth policy to be implemented in the state on National Youth Day (January 12, 2023).

Inaugurating the state-level Youth Panchayat, which marked the 116th birth anniversary of the country's freedom struggle hero Chandrashekhar Azad, in Bhopal, the CM said the state will have its new youth policy.

"It will include all suggestions and participation of youths. The new youth policy will be implemented across the state on Swami Vivekananda's birth anniversary (National Youth Day) on January 12."

He also announced the commencement of the recruitment for one lakh government jobs in the state. The process would begin on August 15. Moreover, two lakh youth will be linked to self-employment scheme every month.

The benefits of various schemes will be made available to the youth by celebrating Employment Day every month.

Addressing the gathering, the CM said "special Youth Awards will be started in the state to recognise the achievements of youngsters in various spheres of creative excellence."

Monkeypox: Govt holds urgent meet, travellers from abroad 'put on watch'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

@NewDelhi

SOON after the reports of monkey pox case surfaced in Delhi, Union health ministry conducted a meeting which was held by Union health secretary Rajesh Bhushan. The ministry has asked the states and union territories to keep a close watch on foreign travellers and Indians who have come from abroad. The ministry also advised the Delhi government for contact tracing and submit a report soon.

A 34-year-old man from Delhi with no history of foreign travel tested positive for monkeypox, taking India's tally of cases to four and prompting the Centre to hold a high-level review meeting, the government said on Sunday.

Three cases of monkeypox was earlier reported from Kerala. The patient who is presently recovering at a designated isolation centre at the Lok Nayak Jai Prakash (LNJP) Hospital in Delhi had attended a stag party in Manali in Himachal Pradesh recently, official sources said.

According to official sources, so far nine contacts, including family members of the patients, have been quarantined and they are being followed up. They are asymptomatic as of now. The west Delhi resident was isolated at LNJP hospital here three days ago after he showed symptoms of the disease. Union Health Ministry officials said his samples were sent to the National Institute of Virology (NIV) Pune on Saturday which came out positive.

MENACE IN THE MAKING?

With India recording four cases of new infectious disease, alarm bells have begun to toll. Here is a look how is the disease and its outbreak so far

TRANSMISSION AND SYMPTOMS

Monkeypox virus is transmitted from infected animals to humans via indirect or direct contact.

Human-to-human transmission can occur through direct contact with infectious skin or lesions, including face-to-face, skin-to-skin, and respiratory droplets.

In the current outbreak countries and amongst the reported monkeypox cases, transmission appears to be occurring primarily through close physical contact, including sexual contact.

Transmission can also occur from contaminated materials such as linens, bedding, electronics, clothing, that have infectious skin particles.

Symptoms include fever, swollen lymph nodes, and a rash that forms blisters and then crusts over.

CASES IN WORLD

So far, more than 17,000 monkeypox cases have been reported from 75 countries across the world and around 72 deaths have been reported since mid-July

CASES IN ASIA

As of 14 July 2022, a total of 116 cases were confirmed by eleven Asian countries like Russia, Israel and India.

CASES IN INDIA

Total 4 cases till Sunday. First case was reported on July 6 and the fourth was found in Delhi on Sunday.

COMBAT PREPARATION

The Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) has trained 15 research and diagnostic laboratories across the country for early detection of the virus as the Centre released fresh strict guidelines to stop the virus.

Since droplets infection is one of the modes of transmission, wearing a mask when in close contact with an infected person is helpful, however it is not airborne like Covid-19.

Dr Satish Koul, Fortis Memorial Research Institute

"The person is recovering at the designated isolation centre at the LNJP hospital. The close contacts of the case have been identified and are under quarantine following the health ministry guidelines," they said. "Public health interventions like identification of the source of infection, enhanced contact tracing, testing, and sensitisation of private practitioners are being carried out. A high-level review of the situation has been planned by the Directorate General of Health Sciences on Sunday at 3 pm," the ministry said.

The World Health Organisation (WHO) on Saturday declared monkeypox a global public health emergency of international concern. Globally, over 16,000 cases of monkeypox have been reported from 75 countries and there have been five deaths so far.

In the WHO South-East Asia Region, besides India, one case has been detected in Thailand. According to sources, Director General of Health Services (DGHS) Atul Goel on Sunday reviewed the monkeypox situation in the country and directed the National Centre for Disease Control (NCDC) to carry out a detailed epidemiological investigation of the cases.

The DGHS also highlighted the need for a targeted approach towards men who have sex with men by the National AIDS Control Organisation (NACO). It was highlighted that health facilities should keep a lookout for people who complain of an unexplained rash and have travelled in the last 21 days to a country that has recently had confirmed or suspected cases of monkeypox.

The Health Ministry had last week reviewed the screening procedure of international travellers arriving in India after cases of the virus were reported in the country.

Airport and Port Health Officers and directors of regional offices of the health and family welfare ministry were advised to ensure strict screening of all international travellers to minimise the risk of monkeypox cases in the country.

SOUTHERN COMFORT

EPS, OPS STRUGGLE TO SEEK BJP ENDORSEMENT

The current round of AIADMK infighting has reached the door of Prime Minister Narendra Modi. The warring EPS and OPS factions are vying to win Mr Modi's support. Both leaders are trying hard to get an appointment with the Prime Minister during his Chennai visit on July 28. The PM is visiting the Tamil Nadu capital to inaugurate the Chess Olympiad scheduled to begin at Mamallapuram near Chennai. Mr Modi's moves on the political chessboard set by the AIADMK factions will be carefully watched. Political circles are buzzing with speculation about which way the BJP will lean. Both Edappadi Palanisamy and O Panneerselvam have sacked each other, claiming ownership of the AIADMK throne. Both have visited Delhi and tried in vain to meet the PM and Home Minister Amit Shah. EPS flew into the national capital to attend outgoing President Ram Nath Kovind's farewell. He visited President-elect Droupadi Murmu's house to congratulate her. But he could not meet the Prime Minister or the Home Minister in spite of best efforts. OPS could not be in Delhi during the past few days as he has reportedly contracted Covid. Though EPS has by all indications taken control of the AIADMK, the BJP had earlier supported OPS and had helped him become deputy chief minister. OPS has not given up hope of the BJP backing him once again to help him occupy a respectable place in the AIADMK. Busy as they were with the Presidential election, Maharashtra upheaval and the monsoon session of Parliament, the PM and home minister have so far kept away from the EPS-OPS tussle. The PM's Chennai visit is now being keenly watched.

ROAD TO RAISINA

KEIRJIWAL TO BE THE FACE OF AAP IN HARYANA POLLS

Ek Mauka Keirjiwal Ko will be the Aam Aadmi Party slogan in the Haryana state elections next year. AAP sources say that party chief Keirjiwal will project himself as the chief ministerial candidate in Haryana election. The AAP chief hails from the Bhiwani district of Haryana. He is therefore a son of the soil, and his electoral debut in the state will be dubbed as a return of the native. "He will be projected as a person who wants to serve his home state after earning laurels in India and abroad for his campaign against corruption, which also won his party an overwhelming support of people in Delhi and Punjab elections," said a reliable source. Rumours of Keirjiwal planning to replace Bhagwant Mann as the chief minister of Punjab have also been brushed aside by the party. To achieve its national ambition, AAP is looking for a financially thriving state from where it can raise funds to feed its nationwide campaign. The party has identified Haryana as that state. Winning Punjab was a big achievement for AAP. It was the first full-fledged state that fell into the party's kitty. After its victory in Punjab, funds are expected to flow into party coffers much more easily. But today's Punjab is not the rich state it once used to be. It has struggled with its finances of late. Haryana, in comparison, has strong economic fundamentals with a wide industrial base. A victory in Haryana could see an exponential rise in AAP's corporate donors. Haryana is, therefore, all set to witness a three-cornered fight between Keirjiwal, chief minister M L Khattar and Congress party's Bhupinder Singh Hooda.

REBELLION IN THE RANKS

INFIGHTING INTENSIFIES IN HARYANA CONGRESS

After losing the Rajya Sabha election because of cross-voting by one Congress MLA and disqualification of the vote of another, All India Congress Committee general secretary Ajay Maken has been working on a mission mode to find out the party MLA who marked the vote wrongly causing his defeat. Though the name of former leader of the opposition in Haryana assembly Kiran Choudhary has been doing rounds in political circles, Kiran himself has stoutly denied making the mistake in marking his preference. Maken has now formally charged Kiran with marking the vote wrongly. He has released a video record of the voting day to show that Kiran Choudhary was the 26th MLA to have voted, and it was the 26th vote that was cancelled. Maken has said that Kiran marked the vote wrongly and then showed it to the Congress party's election agent Vivek Bansal, who did not bring the mistake to the notice of party's senior leaders present at the polling centre. "It is statistically improbable that both Kiran Choudhary and the party's polling agent made a mistake," Maken said, and added that the two will now have to explain whether they actually made a mistake or there was a deliberate foul play. He is reportedly pressing for action against the guilty.

Protect nature for future generations: Kovind

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR

@NewDelhi

OUTGOING President Ram Nath Kovind on Sunday said the climate crisis can endanger the future of the planet and appealed to all to protect the environment for the coming generations.

He sought to give equal importance on saving the nature while carrying out development work. He appealed to all to protect the environment for the coming generations from degradation in the reckless pursuits of advancements.

"Mother Nature is in deep agony and the climate crisis can endanger the very future of this planet. We must take care of our environment, our land, air and water for the sake of our children."

In his televised address, Kovind said that the Covid-19 pandemic has underlined the need to further improve public health infrastructure. "I am glad that the government has accorded top priority to this task and is working well. Once education and healthcare are in place, economic reforms will let citizens find the best course for their lives," he said, adding that the 21st century would certainly be the "Century of India".

President Ram Nath Kovind addresses the nation on the eve of demitting office in New Delhi on Sunday. IPTN

Speaking about the National Education Policy, he hoped that it would go a long way making it possible for young Indians to connect with their heritage and also find their feet in the 21st century.

President Kovind also hailed the trinity of ideals of liberty, equality and fraternity, saying they must not be mistaken as abstractions because they "are lofty, noble and uplifting". "Our history, not only of modern times but also from ancient times, reminds us that they are real; that they can be realised, and indeed have been realised in different eras."

"Our ancestors and founders of our modern nation exemplified the meaning of justice, liberty, equality and fraternity with hard work and an attitude of service. We only have to follow in their footsteps and keep walking," he said.

Murmu to take oath as youngest President today

NEW DELHI: Droupadi Murmu, to be youngest in office, will become the 10th successive President to take oath on July 25 since 1977. Records show that since 1977, successive presidents have taken oath on July 25. India's first President Rajendra Prasad took oath on January 26, 1950 — the day India became a Republic. In 1952, he went on to win the first presidential poll. He won the second presidential election and was in office till May 1962. Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan took oath as the president on May 13, 1962 and was in office till May 13, 1967. Two presidents — Zakir Husain and Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed — could not complete their tenures as they died in harness. Neelam Sanjiva Reddy, the sixth president of India, took oath on July 25, 1977. Since then successive presidents including Giani Zail Singh, R Venkataraman, Shankar Dayal Sharma, K R Narayanan, A P J Abdul Kalam, Pratibha Patil, Pranab Mukherjee and Ram Nath Kovind have taken oath on July 25. PM to BJP-ruled states: Ensure full coverage of welfare schemes

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @NewDelhi

KEEPING in mind the upcoming assembly elections in some states and the 2024 Lok Sabha polls, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Sunday held a meeting with chief ministers and deputy chief ministers of BJP-ruled states and asked them to ensure saturation-level coverage of welfare schemes and boost the business environment in the country. The meeting, Mukhyamantri Parishad, was attended by chief ministers and deputy chief ministers of 18 states. BJP president J P Nadda, Bhupendra Yadav and Vinay Sahasrabudhe, who head the party's good governance cell, were also present at the meeting.

The PM took stock of development work, especially launched by the Central government, from the states. Modi emphasised on better implementation of some key schemes and initiatives of the government such as GatiShakti, Har Ghar Jal, Svamitva, DBT implementation and others, the BJP said in a statement.

"Prime Minister Modi stressed on the need to ensure saturation-level coverage of all key schemes and said that BJP-ruled states should take a lead towards this," it read.

Emphasising on the need to ensure ease of doing business, Modi spoke about several initiatives taken by his government. "He encouraged the states to take steps towards further boosting the business environment in the country," the party said. Sources in the BJP said that the PM asked the CMs and the deputy CMs to ensure that information about the government schemes reach people living in far-flung areas. Sources said the PM wanted all possible steps to address people's problems within a short timeframe.

Asking the states to make the government's performance visible on social media platforms, the PM said people should get to know that the government believes in development policies.

Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath, Madhya Pradesh Chief Minister Shrivraj Singh Chouhan, Uttarakhand Chief Minister Pushkar Singh Dhami and Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma are among those who attended the meeting.

Nagaland Chief Minister Nephio Rio, Karnataka Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai, Tripura Chief Minister Manik Saha, Gujarat Chief Minister Bhupendra Patel, Goa Chief Minister Pramod Sawant, and Tripura Chief Minister Manik Saha were also present.

'BJP decided on CM with heavy heart'

Maharashtra BJP chief Chandrakant Patil's remark creates flutter, party downplays issue

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

A new controversy has erupted in Maharashtra, this time from the BJP quarters., with state party chief Chandrakant Patil saying on Saturday that it was with a "heavy heart" that the BJP and Devendra Fadnavis extended support to Eknath Shinde as the chief minister of Maharashtra.

"We needed to provide a leader who would convey the right message and ensure stability. The central leadership and Devendraji decided to back Eknath Shinde as the chief minister with a heavy heart. We were unhappy but decided to accept the decision," Patil said.

Patil made this statement while speaking at a meeting of the state BJP's executive committee at Panvel. The Opposition was quick to jump at the comment, saying that all is not well in the Shinde-Fadnavis government and that the government will collapse soon due to internal contradictions.

Shiv Sena leader Sanjay Raut remarked that the truth came out from Patil's mouth when the latter said that Eknath Shinde was made the chief minister of Maharashtra to send the right message to people.

"This double-standard government, formed by theft, will collapse under its own contradictions. It was not based on a strong foundation and will never be," Raut said on Sunday.

The BJP, however, tried to downplay Patil's comments.

Senior BJP leader Ashish Shelar said it was not the stand of the party or Patil, and that the latter was articulating the feelings of ordinary workers in the meeting. After the Uddhav Thackeray government collapsed due to the rebellion by a group of 41 MLAs and 12 Lok Sabha MPs led by Shinde, it was expected that former chief minister Fadnavis would become the CM while Shinde would take over as the deputy chief minister of Maharashtra. The BJP, with 105 MLAs, is also the largest single party in the state. However, on June 30, Fadnavis surprised everyone and announced the name of Shinde as the chief minister.

Fadnavis had first said that he would stay outside the government, but within a few hours, BJP president JP Nadda announced that he would take oath as the deputy CM.

Uddhav seeks loyalty proof from cadre

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

A day after the Election Commission asked Maharashtra Chief Minister Eknath Shinde-led factions and Uddhav Thackeray to prove that they have majority members in the Shiv Sena, Uddhav on Sunday sought affidavits from district president and office-bearers.

The EC asked both the Shinde factions and Uddhav to submit the documents that they have majority members in the Sena by August 8.

Uddhav held a series of meetings with his party district president and took affidavits from them that they were with him. "This exercise will prove that Uddhav Thackeray enjoys the majority support. The affidavits will be presented before the EC as documentary evidence. It will help Uddhav to stake claim over an arrow and bow, the symbol of the Shiv Sena," said a Sena leader, requesting anonymity.

On the other hand, Shinde claimed that out of 55 Sena MLAs, he had the support of as many as 41. Besides, 12 of the total 18 Lok Sabha MPs have already extended support to Shinde.

Shah to attend BJP Patna meet on 31st

RAMASHANKAR @ Patna

UNION home minister Amit Shah will attend the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) meeting of all frontal organisations in Patna on July 31.

During his one-day visit to the state, Shah is expected to take feedback from party functionaries about the Nitish Kumar-led government's performance and also formulate a strategy to strengthen the party's base in all the 243 assembly constituencies of Bihar ahead of the 2024 Lok Sabha elections.

BJP president JP Nadda will reach the state capital on July 30 to inaugurate the meeting. He will also inaugurate several district party offices virtually.

"BJP's move to make preparations for all the 243 seats of the state suggests the party's differences with its allies, especially JD(U), on the seat-sharing arrangement for the Lok Sabha elections in 2024," said a political analyst.

Strengthening its strategy to galvanise party's rank and file ahead of the Lok Sabha elections, 750 office-bearers of BJP's frontal organisations from across the country will spend two days in Bihar's villages from July 28. Office-bearers from BJP's seven national frontal organisations, including Kisan Morcha, Mahila Morcha, Yuva Morcha, SC Morcha, ST Morcha, Backward Class Morcha and Minority Morcha, will take part in the meeting.

During their visit, office-bearers will find out how schemes of both central and the state government are being implemented.

BJP has divided 243 assembly constituencies among its organisations. One frontal organisation has been given the responsibility for 30-35 assembly constituencies.

The office-bearers will talk to beneficiaries of the centrally sponsored schemes and formulate a strategy to create awareness among them through various social media platforms.

State BJP president Sanjay Jaiswal has been given the task of supervising all arrangements for the meeting.

Hardik Patel still haunting Congress?

After seven Gujarat Congress MLAs reportedly cross-voted in the Presidential election senior leaders are anticipate poaching of party candidates in the run-up to the Assembly elections. According to information received from sources, five of the cross-voters were Patidar (Patel) MLAs while one belongs to a tribal community and one an OBC community. The five Patidar MLAs were once considered very close to Patidar trailblazer and former Congressman Hardik Patel, who recently joined BJP. Sources say that when Hardik Patel joined the BJP, these five leaders were to join the party with him, but BJP changed the strategy last moment and as part of the new strategy, they stayed in the Congress. According to the new strategy by the saffrons, the grand party leaders will join one by one as the elections approach.

Polls: Jagdish Thakore vies for a bigger pie

From peddling soft Hindutva to reminding minorities of the stand taken by the party over the years, Gujarat Pradesh Congress Committee president Jagdish Thakore is leaving no stone unturned to make his presence felt across the religious divides in the election-bound state. Addressing a convention of the party minorities wing in Ahmedabad on Wednesday, the state chief remembered former prime minister Dr Manmohan Singh's statement made and said, "Former prime minister Manmohan Singh used to say that the minorities have the first right over the treasury (tior) of the country." It is important that some senior Congress leaders do not agree with this statement. Further, some believe that such statements in a divided environment would only lead to the consolidation of communities benefiting the BJP.

Dist leader's conduct embarrasses BJP

Since the establishment of Gujarat, there is a liquor ban in the state, but the Congress has been making accusations against the ruling BJP for a long time that the government is not enforcing the ban strictly. Recently, a video of Chhota Udaipur district BJP president Rashmikant Vasava - seemingly tipsy - cosying up to fellow woman minister Nimishaben Suthar went viral. With election month nearing, the incident has brought much embarrassment to BJP leaders.

Not absconding, fear for life, says BJP leader over brothel charges

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @ Guwahati

MEGHALAYA BJP vice president Bernard Marak, who has been charged with running a prostitution racket from his farmhouse at Tura in West Garo Hills district, said on Sunday that he is not absconding, but moved out of the state since he fears for his life.

In a video message, Marak alleged that Chief Minister Conrad K Sangma of National People's Party (NPP) had issued directions to the police to falsely implicate him.

He said he was neither absconding nor evading arrest but just trying to stay safe. He was in Shillong when the police conducted an eight-hour-long raid at his farmhouse on Friday night, and recovered 400 bottles of liquor, and 500 packets of condoms and contraceptive pills. DGPR LRBishnoi said the recovery indicated that the farmhouse was being run as a brothel.

Marak said during the raid, the police asked him to go to a police station in Shillong.

"But as I was coming out, two cars approached me. I was apprehensive because I had information that they will try to implicate me and if possible, gun me down. So I had to move from Shillong to Guwa-hati," Marak said, adding, "The charge that I was running a prostitution racket was made up by police. Actually, I am helping underprivileged students to study. I kept 9-10 of them in my farmhouse," Marak said, stating that the five children "rescued" by the police were sponsored by him.

Accusing the NPP and Sangma, Marak said, "The charges were aimed at maligning BJP's image since it is growing here and I was elected to Garo Hills Autonomous District Council from the CM's constituency."

PoK illegally occupied by Pak: Rajnath

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

TERMING Article 370 as an artificial legal barrier, Defence Minister Rajnath Singh on Sunday said post Independence, the entire area of Jammu and Kashmir and Ladakh became the 'main war theatre', and asserted that a confident new India is well-equipped to give a befitting reply to anyone who casts an evil eye.

Speaking during an event organised to commemorate 'Kargil Vijay Diwas' in Jammu on Sunday, Rajnath also announced the setting up of joint theatre commands of the tri-services to enhance coordination among the armed forces.

Referring to PoK and Gilgit-Baltistan, the defence minister said these areas are illegally occupied by Pakistan and a resolution to free it has been unanimously passed in the parliament of India.

"How is it possible that Baba Amarnath in the form of Shiva is with us and Mata Sharda Shakti is across the LoC," he said. "God should give better sense to Pakistan. I cannot say beyond that," he added.

The abrogation of Article 370, he said, brought a new dawn of hope to the dreams and aspirations of the people of J&K, especially the youth.

Unease in TMC over Mamata name appearing in Partha's arrest memo

PRANAB MONDAL @ Kolkata

A day after Trinamool Congress general secretary and West Bengal minister Partha Chatterjee was arrested in connection with the alleged teacher recruitment scam, the ruling party in the state on Sunday widened its distance from the leader.

The TMC said that action would be taken against Chatterjee if the court approves any evidence submitted by the Enforcement Directorate (ED).

"What happened during the course of ED investigation, the TMC is not involved in it. If the agency submits any evidence, which is approved by the court, the party and the state government will take action against any leader," said TMC spokesperson Kunal Ghosh.

The shift in stance emerged after the TMC came to know that Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee's name was mentioned in Chatterjee's arrest memo, said TMC sources.

"When he was asked whom he wanted to contact, he named the CM. He tried to reach her four times over the phone. We stated it in the arrest memo," said an official. Corroborating ED's claim, Chatterjee, after routine check-up at Joka ESI Hospital on Saturday, said,

Documents of eight apartments in Kolkata found in Arpita's name

Kolkata: The recovery of ₹21.90 crore in cash and jewellery worth ₹76 lakh from the house of model-actor Arpita Mukherjee, who is said to be close to Partha Chatterjee, was an onion and more revelations are expected with its peeling, said a lawyer representing the ED in Bankshall court on Sunday while opposing her bail plea. Sources said papers related to properties were found from Chatterjee's residence which were issued in Arpita's name. "We came to know about eight apartments in and around Kolkata in her name. She is yet to disclose the source of the money used to buy the properties," said an official.

"I tried to reach Dalanetri (Mamata), but I could not."

The party leadership is not happy with Chatterjee's efforts of trying to contact Mamata. "It has unnecessarily dragged her name in the controversy," said a TMC leader.

Both CPM and BJP attacked Mamata. "No one believes that her party is not involved in the scam," said CPM MP Bikash Bhattacharya. BJP's Sukanta Majumdar said it is not possible that Mamata had no idea about the malpractice.

Jharkhand athlete sisters run pillar to post for toilet at home

The house of Florance Barla's family at Nawadhi village in Jharkhand

MUKESH RANJAN @ Ranchi

FIVE gold medals for the country. Several medals for the state. No toilet at home. This is the home in Jharkhand of the athlete sisters, Florance Barla and Asha Kiran Barala. The siblings also have to travel a distance of nearly one km to fetch water from a well or water spring.

According to Florance, the elder of the two sprinters, the family was supposed to get a toilet built at their house under the Swachh Bharat Mission during 2019-20, but the facility is yet to be ready. The situation is similar in all the 22 households at Nawadhi village that falls under Redwa Panchayat in Kamdara Block of Gumla.

"One toilet was allotted to us by the government about three years back, but it is yet to be completed," Florance said, adding that the under-construction structure has no door or roof. "Construction of none of the toilets, which were started in 2019 in the village, has got completed," she said. Her mother had approached the officials, but nothing came of it.

The Redwa Panchayat has been declared open defecation free. Locals say there is a provision to give ₹12,000 cash to each household for construction of toilets, but instead of given them the money, the work was allotted to contractors.

The sisters started winning medals in 2018, after which they were allotted an Ambedkar Awas in their mother's name. The house still remains under-construction. The duo has won 16 gold medals, besides many silver and bronze medals, in 400m sprint races.

Officials said they are looking into the matter and a survey is being conducted for the households which were left out of the scheme or those where construction has not got over.

"The Swachh Bharat Mission was started several years back.

We are still preparing a list of those who did not get it. We are ensuring that it gets completed through Jharkhand State Livelihood Promotion Society. The Barla family did not have a pucca house, we allotted Ambedkar Awas for them a few months back," Kamdara BDO Amrita Priyanka Ekka said.

The Barla family says they are also deprived of the food security scheme as their ration card does not carry the names of all members. Ekka however said they have been given Antyodaya Card under which 35 kg of food grains is given to any family irrespective of the family size. When asked about the drinking water issue, Ekka said, "The area is a dry zone. We are thinking of bringing a scheme from public health engineering department."

CISCE 12th results: 18 students share top rank

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

THE Council for the Indian School Certificate Examination (CISCE) semester 2 result for the ISC Class 12th exams was declared on Sunday, with 18 candidates sharing the top rank with a score of 99.75 per cent.

The second rank has been shared by 58 candidates who scored 99.50 per cent, while 78 candidates scored 99.25 per cent to share the third rank, according to results announced on Sunday.

The CISCE has announced a merit list after two years as results were declared on the basis of an alternative assessment scheme after exams could not be conducted due to the pandemic.

The pass percentage for girls (99.52) is marginally higher than that of boys (99.26), officials said, adding the overall pass percentage was 99.38.

For the first time in the history of the board, the CISCE conducted two examinations in a single examination year. While semester one examinations were held in November-December, 2021, the second semester exams were conducted in April-May, 2022, for both Class 10 and Class 12.

The northern region has the best pass percentage (99.43 per cent), followed by the eastern region with 99.18 per cent pass percentage. A total of 1,228 schools had presented candidates for the exam.

Strike on Odesa port hit only military targets: Russia

KYIV

RUSSIAN defense ministry of ficials on Sunday insisted that an airstrike on the port of Odesa less than a day after Russia and Ukraine signed an agree- ment on resuming grain ship- ments from there had hit only military targets.

“In the seaport in the city of Odesa, on the territory of a shipyard, sea-based high-precision long-range missiles de- stroyed a docked Ukrainian warship and a warehouse with Harpoon anti-ship missiles sup- plied by the US to the Kyiv re- gime,” ministry spokesman Igor Konashenko said at a dai- ly briefing.

Ukrainian President Volody- myr Zelenskyy said in his nightly televised address Sat- urday evening that the attack on Odesa destroyed the very pos- sibility of dialogue with Rus- sia. The Ukrainian military said on Saturday that Moscow had attacked Odesa’s sea port with four cruise missiles, two of which had been shot down by Ukrainian air defense.

Command spokeswoman Na- taliya Humenyuk said that no grain storage facilities were hit. Turkey’s defense minister, how- ever, said he had had reports from Ukrainian authorities that one missile struck a grain silo while another landed near- by, although neither affected loading at Odesa’s docks.

It was not immediately clear how the airstrike would affect plans to resume shipping Ukrainian grain by sea in safe corridors out of three Ukraini- an Black Sea ports: Odesa, Chernomorsk and Yuzhny.

Russia and Ukraine on Fri- day signed identical agree- ments with the UN and Turkey in Istanbul aimed at clearing the way for the shipment of mil- lions of tons of desperately needed Ukrainian grain, as well as the export of Russian grain and fertilizer.

Senior UN officials voiced hopes that the deal would end a months-long standoff brought about by the war in Ukraine that threatened food security around the globe.

Elsewhere on Sunday, Ukrain- ian authorities reported that Russian shelling continued to kill and injure civilians in Ukraine’s south and east.

The governor of the eastern Donetsk region, one of two which make up Ukraine’s in- dustrial heartland of the Don- bas and a key focus of Russia’s offensive, said that two civil- ians had been killed and two more had been injured over the previous 24 hours.

The UK military on Sunday morning reported in its dai- ly intelligence update that Russia was making minimal progress in its ongoing Donbas offensive, which it said remained small- scale and focused on the city of Bakhmut in Ukraine’s eastern Donetsk region.

The Ukrainian General Staff confirmed in its regular update that Russia was conducting mi- litary operations to create condi- tions for an assault on Ba- khmut.

Lanka’s Prez Secretariat to re-open after 100 days

COLOMBO

SRI Lanka’s Presidential Secretar- iat, which was stormed by a sea of anti-government protesters in ear- ly July, is set to return to function- ing from Monday under a tight se- curity cover, according to a media report.

Cleaning and repair work was underway to ready the Presi- dential Secretariat over the weekend as security forces opened Galle Road in front of the Secretariat for traffic, a senior police official was quoted by the Sunday Times newspaper as saying.

The site, which had been blocked by protesters for more than 100 days, saw an excessive rampage by protesters on July 9, forcing Gota- baya Rajapaksa to flee the country and resign as president.

Security forces have already opened Galle road for traffic in front of the Secretariat, the report said. Protestors on Saturday stayed about 100 metres away from the Presidential Secretariat and held no protest during the day. Some of them were also seen playing crick- et, the report said.

How rupee depreciation impacts your money

It's impacting your portfolio either directly or through measures that the government is taking to curb the fall

DIPAK MONDAL @ New Delhi

RUPEE has depreciated by around 8% against the US dollar since the beginning of the year. And while the Indian economy is suffering because of the sharp drop in the value of Indian currency vis-a-vis the US, it is also impacting your finances and investment portfolio.

Rupee depreciation is impacting your portfolio either directly or through the measures that the government is taking to curb the fall of rupee. We enlist the likely impact on your finances due to depreciation of rupee against dollar:

■ Imported inflation: As much as 86% of Indian imports are invoiced in dollars. Therefore, when the rupee depreciates against the US dollar, imports become costlier in rupee terms. This increases inflationary pressure in India, and manufacturers who buy costlier raw materials begin to pass on the cost to the end consumer. Rupee depreciation coupled with higher crude oil prices in the global markets have been a double blow for common man already with very high fuel prices in the domestic market. The retail inflation has been trending over 7% since April, and it might very well remain in those levels for

Important points to note

Rupee has depreciated by 8% against the US dollar since January 2022	Rupee has appreciated against other major global currencies like the Euro, Japanese Yen and Pound Sterling
Domestic companies with large exports to US markets – IT, Pharma and Auto firms – may gain from a weak rupee	RBI has relaxed the cap on FCNR and NRE deposit interest rates to attract more foreign currency deposits

Domestic companies which depend on imported raw materials likely to get negatively impacted by rupee depreciation another quarter.

■ Costly international travel or overseas education: A depreciating rupee may adversely impact international travel or overseas studies as the Indian rupee would buy less foreign currency than earlier in foreign destinations.

"The rupee depreciation increases the burden on aspirational Indians who are aiming to send their children abroad for higher education and make remittances for their living costs and other expenses," says Raj Gandhi, co-founder of DollarBull, a financial investment firm that facilitates international equity investment.

However, it is also to be noted that Indian currency had not depreciated against many major global currencies. In fact, in some cases, it has appreciated against currencies like Euro, Yen and pound sterling. Therefore, travel and study trips to Europe and Japan may not be expensive for the Indian travellers, students.

■ Benefit for Indians working overseas: India is one of the biggest receivers of remittances from the population working overseas. In 2021, Indians working overseas sent $87 billion to India. As rupee depreciates against USD, NRIs gain from their holding in dollar assets.

The RBI recently eased the restrictions on interest rates offered by banks on Non-Resident External (NRE) deposits as well as Foreign Currency Non-Resident (FCNR) Fixed deposits. After the RBI circular on easing interest rate caps, banks have been increasing interest rates by as much as 105 basis points on foreign currency deposits.

These deposits would not only earn higher interest, they are also tax-free and fully repatriable.

"There is an increased interest in FCNR and NRE deposits as banks have increased rates on such deposits. They are also tax-free, and therefore, NRIs will increase allocation to these deposits," says Yogesh Kalwani, head of investment, InCred Wealth.

■ Impact on investment portfolio: Rupee depreciation benefits exporters as their exports become more competitive and they earn higher dollar revenue. If your investment portfolio has these companies, you might get positively impacted by depreciation of rupee.

"Since India is a significant tech, pharma and automobile exporter to the US, these sectors stand to gain in times of Rupee depreciation. Going forward, if this trend continues exports as a theme is likely to perform well," says Chintan Haria, Head Product & Strategy, ICICI Prudential Mutual Fund.

However, a lot of Indian companies depend on imported raw material, and their margins might get impacted.

MARKET OUTLOOK

Market to see more action post best weekly gain in 75 weeks

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU
@ New Delhi

AFTER sharp corrections followed by little recoveries for months, India's equity market witnessed one of its best trading weeks in a very long time. Indian benchmark equity indices, Sensex and Nifty, on Friday rose for the sixth straight session and recorded their best weekly performance since February 2021 or 75 weeks.

While Sensex closed the week at 56072.2, up 2311 points or 4.30%, Nifty settled at 16719.45 with 670 points or 4.18%. The rally was mainly backed by foreign portfolio investments amid expectations of a less aggressive rate hike by the Fed in its coming meet.

Data from depositories highlights that between July 1 and July 22, FPIs (foreign portfolio investors) have become net investors this month so far, investing about ₹1,100 crore in Indian shares. On Thursday alone, FPIs made investment of over $1 billion into Indian stocks. This is in sharp contrast to what they have been doing since October last year. According to National Securities Depository Limited data, FPIs sold ₹226,420 crore so far in 2022. In the month of June alone, FPIs net sell-off stood at ₹50,145 crore from Indian stocks.

Santosh Meena, Head of Research, Swastika Investment Ltd, said, "Indian equity benchmark indices Nifty and Sensex gained more than 4% last week with positive closing each day thanks to buying by FIIs, recovery in global market, some cool off in dollar index and commodity market, easing inflation fear, better than expected Q1 earnings so far."

According to Meena, this week is going to be an event heavy therefore we can expect a spike in volatility. The market will first react to 30% of Nifty's earnings on Monday morning because results of Reliance Industries Ltd, ICICI Bank, Kotak Bank, and Infosys over the weekend. Apart from this, many Nifty50 companies will announce their Q1 earnings during the weekdays.

Axis Bank, Tata Steel, Asian Paints, Bajaj Auto, Larsen & Toubro, Maruti Suzuki, Tata Motors and HDFC are some big names that would be announcing its Q1FY23 results this week.

A practical approach to wealth creation from equity

G PRADEEPKUMAR
(The author is the CEO of Union Mutual Fund)

MANY retail investors shy away from investing in equities. Lack of inclination, patience, curiosity and above all, knowledge, have deprived many retail investors of a bona fide and effective way of earning reasonably good money. Besides this, the oft-quoted and scarcely understood expression of "volatility" has proved to be another dampener for investors even if they think of investing in equities. In fact, many experts point out that following the age-old wisdom of "buying at low price and selling at high price" works especially in the long-term. There is a practical way to understand these nuances. Let us delve deeper into these:

We will follow a practical approach to make you realise that in the long-term an investor who invests consistently only gains. In markets, a smart investor buys shares at a low point of the markets. And converse of this also holds good - a not-so-experienced investor buys at a peak of the stock markets. What if we compare their performance with the historical data?

Let us assume that a smart investor invested ₹1 lakh each year at the bottom of the Nifty 50 index Total Return Index (TRI) for a decade between 2002 and 2011. Now, in the next decade between 2011 and 2022 the investor does not invest. She just holds on to her investments she made between 2002 and 2011. The value of her investments has jumped to ₹1.09 crore in 2022. In a similar fashion, now, let us look at a not-so-experienced investor who invested ₹1 lakh each year at peaks of the Nifty 50 index TRI for a decade between 2002 and 2011. Again, she does not invest in the subsequent decade which ends in 2022. Again, the value of her investments she made between 2002 and 2011 has grown to ₹67.86 lakh. In both situations, an investor invested ₹1 lakh every year for a decade and earned a huge sum.

A key and practical lesson to learn from these data points is: the stock markets reward investors in the long-term. Timing the market is next to impossible. Both the above situations are extreme examples. One can neither be consistently unlucky to invest at every peak of the markets nor lucky enough to capture the lowest points of the markets. Hence, it makes sense to start investing as early as you can and keep investing at regular intervals. This ensures that you get to participate in the stock market at all levels.

Sometimes investors end up not investing when the stock markets are going up. They assume that they will be investing in markets at a high level. As a result of this, these investors watch the markets like a bystander. Nobody makes money by just watching the market. In markets, there are no fixed patterns. Historical data points out that there have been prolonged bull phases in markets. And investors who shy away from investing in markets when they are at a peak lose out on opportunities to make fairly good returns.

All these learnings make it very clear that it is a lucrative and wise decision to invest regularly and hold on to your investments in equities for the long-term. The journey of your investments may not be always smooth. There will be periods of corrections when you see the value of your investments going down. But if you stay put with your existing investments and keep adding to them there is a good chance that you would end up making good returns which will comfortably beat inflation and help you achieve your financial goals.

This is a practical and effective way of creating wealth in the long-term. Investors need to identify their financial goals, ascertain their asset allocation and prepare an investment plan accordingly. Investing through Systematic Investment Plan (SIP) route can help you increase your investments in the long-term. This is because "investing at regular intervals" and staying invested for a long-time gives you a very good chance of reaching your investment goals.

IT services provider Infosys on Sunday posted a 3% increase in net profit at ₹5,360 crore for Q1 FY23 compared to ₹5,195 crore in the same quarter last year.

However, sequentially the company reported a 5.7% decrease in net profit. It reported ₹5,686 crore net profit in Q4FY22. The company missed street estimates, as analysts forecasted around 6-9% increase in consolidated net profit.

The company's revenue stood at ₹34,470 crore, up 23.5% in the first quarter compared to ₹27,896 crore during the same quarter of the previous fiscal.

Its operating margin is under pressure at 20.1% in the June quarter, as it declined 3.6% Y-o-

Y and 1.4% Q-o-Q due to rise in wages. The company also saw a dip in its utilisation levels to 84.7% in the first quarter from 88.5% in Q1FY22.

The IT giant has also increased its FY23 revenue guidance to 14-16% from 13-15%. It retained its margin guidance at 21-23%.

"We continue to gain market share and see a significant pipeline driven by our Cobalt cloud capabilities and differentiated digital value proposition," said Salil Parekh, CEO and MD, Infosys.

He said that the company is investing in rapid talent expansion, and this has resulted in a strong performance in Q1 and increase in FY 23 revenue guidance to 14%-16%.

Infosys' large deal total contract value (TCV) stood at $1.7 billion in the June quarter. Parekh added that the pipeline for deals is large, and the demand outlook is good.

Digital accounted for 61% of overall revenues, growing at 37.5% in constant currency.

'Grievance redressal of taxpayers top priority'

Highest tax collection

Nitin Gupta said said the tax department has reported the highest ever tax collection of ₹14.09 lakh crore in the fiscal year ended March 31, 2022 due to streamlining of policies.

PROMPT redressal of taxpayers' grievances remains the top priority for the tax department, the newly appointed chairman of Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) Nitin Gupta said on Sunday. In his message on the occasion of Income Tax Day, he said the tax department has reported the highest ever tax collection of ₹14.09 lakh crore in the fiscal year ended March 31, 2022 due to streamlining of policies and processes that eased compliance for taxpayers.

"However, we cannot rest on our laurels and need to keep working hard to maintain this momentum," he said. "Prompt redressal of taxpayers' grievances in the true spirit of the Taxpayers' Charter shall remain a top priority area." CBDT, the tax administration arm of the government, will continue to engage proactively with the taxpayers and other stakeholders and will use their feedback to keep improving processes. PTI

GLOBAL FUNDS IN SPOTLIGHT

The fund's top holdings are in the Data Processing and Outsourced Services, Managed Health Care, Interactive Media and Services sectors. The performances of this fund over a 1-year, 3-year and 5-year time period are (-10.81%), 11.99% and 14.03% respectively.

Mirae Asset S&P 500 Top 50 ETF Fund Of Fund is a relatively new entrant into this space and has an AUM of ₹343 Crore. It invests predominantly in Equity and Equity related securities of companies listed in the United States of America through Mirae Asset S&P 500 Top 50 ETF. The performances of this fund over 3-month and 6-month time period are (-6.26%) and (-8.08%) respectively.

Axis Greater China Equity Fund has an AUM of ₹136 Crore and it invests predominantly in units of Schroder International Selection Fund Greater China, a fund that in turn invests in equity and equity related securities of companies from China, Hong Kong and Taiwan companies. The performances of this fund over 3-month, 6-month and 1-year time period are 5.60%, (-11.61%) and (-19.53%) respectively.

To conclude, global/international funds seem to have a place in the portfolios of investors seeking a quasi-currency hedge. Any revival in the battered down global markets herefrom, could prove to be the proverbial icing on the cake too for its investors. Nonetheless, selectiveness is recommended.

Indian racer Jehan Daruvala recorded his sixth podium of the season in the French round of the Formula 2, as he left the Paul Ricard track with yet another strong points-scoring weekend. Jehan started Sprint race from pole position and was comfortably holding his own at the front when an incident involving three cars brought out the safety car.

KLAUS WORK KEEPING NEERAJ FIT & READY

INDRANEEL DAS @Chennai

THERE is humility in his voice. His silence is morphed in seriousness, especially with the job in hand. He seldom takes credit for training a champion. He keeps away from the limelight and lets his ward soak in all the joys of success.

Coach Klaus Bartonietz loves to laugh, talk about hikes, treks and small joys of nature. And he happens to be the senior-most member of the Neeraj Chopra three-member family while training away from family and friends at home or abroad. Ishaan Marwaha, the physio, is the other member that ensures the athlete remains injury-free, fit and fine when the call for duty is announced. It's a small family but a happy one.

The 73-year-old German coach likes it simple, bereft of the qualms and complications of the world. He believes knowing the limits of one's body is essential, and there is no reason to push beyond a point. When Neeraj started training some time towards the end of last year, Bartonietz did not push.

"He needed to be fit," he said. "He was overweight and we (he and the physio) had to ensure he was fit before starting to throw."

Forget the javelin, Neeraj was not even fit enough to throw the medicine ball! It took them more than a month before they started some throwing with balls first in January and later with the javelin. It was a process and it was slow cooking. For the coach, keeping the body and mind healthy is paramount.

Like Neeraj, even the coach was in a territory not trodden before. The thrower fouled his first throw at the World Championships final in Eugene on Saturday (early Sunday in India) and the next two throws were ordinary by his standard. Despite myriad emotions flashing by, the coach stayed calm. "It was challenging because of the conditions and the situation we were in but I was not worried," he told this daily from Eugene while waiting for his ward to finish his dope control. "He has the experience. He knows that he has prepared well and he was close to 90m

WHAT THEY SAID...

Anju Bobby George @anjubobbygeorg1

Congratulations @Neeraj_chopra for that magic moment..N welcome to the group..it was a long wait. Thanks to @afiindia @Media_SAI @ianuragthakur for all the support .

PT Usha @PTUshaOfficial

Congratulations to @Neeraj_chopra for winning the silver at 2022 World Athletics Championships for our country. Your best efforts have made our country proud in the world. Keep the flag flying high. Jai Hind.

tion his drills are basic and he loves to work on the mind – the centre that controls the body. After the first two throws – which is crucial for Neeraj who doesn't want to leave it late – it was all about the mind. "In competitions it's about having a strong mind as the brain is controlling everything," he said. "In fact, it is 90 per cent mental and 10 per cent physical, especially when you are in such a position. But I was confident because Neeraj has a very strong mind and he proved it strongly. It's not easy to come back but he was confident and so were we."

Even here during the interval between the qualification round and final, it was simple rituals without much stress. "Some speed training and light throws and squats," he said. But mostly he wanted Neeraj to relax and not worry too much about the results. Their training in Turkey and later in Chula Vista after the European circuit had been very fruitful.

Like he had said, strengthening his hip and his legs (left one more) to support the throws were the most challenging part. "We had to make it gradual. You could see he had a good time after the Tokyo 2020 Olympics," he laughed in his most imitable style.

About the conditions in Eugene, which Neeraj had mentioned after his silver, Klaus said the wind was tricky. "It was windy and you don't really know how the javelin would behave unless it was in the air," he said. The coach, overall as always, has no complaints. "It's a silver and a good show and I am very happy."

With the Commonwealth Games event scheduled for August 7, the team is heading to Birmingham on Sunday (US time). Klau is also keeping a close watch at Neeraj's thigh strain, which the latter admitted during an interaction. "Right now we are travelling to Birmingham and I hope it is not too bad."

"Neeraj had fouled his first throw and only later could he see how the wind blew and how the javelin behaved. We have to keep a watch on that. In windy conditions the throw needed to be flatter as it would not be hanging in the air for too long. You cannot predict the wind. But those are the changes one has to adapt to while throwing." And like the man he is, Klaus said there was nothing to worry about the conditions. One has to train perfectly for a perfect throw. That's what he believes in and would continue believing in.

LONDON: The board of the Scottish cricket federation resigned en masse on Sunday following accusations of institutional racism in a damning independent review which is due to be published on Monday. The review was commissioned last year by Sport Scotland, the national funding body.

Wicketkeeper Karuna announces retirement

BENGALURU: Former India women's team wicketkeeper Karuna Jain Sunday announced her retirement from all forms of the game. She played 44 ODIs and scored 987 runs with a solitary hundred and nine fifties.

EXPRESS READ

Hope hits century to lift Windies to 311/6

TRINIDAD: Opener Shai Hope showed his class with a magnificent century while skipper Nicholas Pooran won a six-hitting spree as the West Indies produced a solid batting display to post 311/6 against India in the second ODI here on Sunday. Hope, who was dismissed cheaply in first ODI, played the role of the anchor to perfection as he added 65 runs off 55 balls for the opening wicket with Kyle Mayers (39), before forging another 62 with Shamrah Brooks (35). While Mayers and Brooks showed promise, Hope found his perfect ally in skipper Pooran, who showed his big-hitting prowess during his 74 off 77 balls with the help of six sixes and one four. Brief scores: WI 311/6 in 50 ovs (S Hope 115, N Pooran 74, S Thakur 3/54) vs India.

Chandimal propels SL in Mathews' 100th Test

GALLE: Dinesh Chandimal struck his fourth successive half-century to drive Sri Lanka's total before Pakistan hit back with late wickets on Sunday's opening day of the second Test at Galle. Chandimal, who hit 80, put on 75-run fourth-wicket stand with Angelo Mathews, who is playing his 100th Test. Brief scores: Sri Lanka 315/6 in 86 ovs (Chandimal 80, Fernando 50) vs Pakistan.

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @Chennai

WHEN Japan placed its tanks in the general direction of Burma during World War II, the Aarons knew it was time to go back to Madras Presidency. When they travelled back to the region of their ancestors in December 1941, there was a kid with them. "It was December 1941, World War 2 was going on," Manuel, now 86, remembers. "We were bombed out of Burma. It was the Japanese invasion." Even as the kid started to settle in the new environment, he was a natural at chess. His grandfather — who had passed away one year after Manuel's birth in 1935 — had played chess with the British. Likewise, his uncle and father were keen students of the game. However, Manuel's growth story was destined for the stars. It hit fever pitch and it ultimately led him to become India's first International Master. In an interview with this daily, the Grand Old Man of Indian chess recounts his playing days. Excerpts:

On why he started playing chess

Both my parents used to play. I picked up by watching them. My grandfather also used to play with the British people.

On playing chess full-time

I used to spend so much of time on chess that my father used to ask 'why are you wasting your time?' Unnaku soaru poduma (will this feed you)? I didn't have an answer. (But) I had to live. Needed the money and take up a job somewhere. I came to Madras in 1955. I started playing it. It was easy because there were lots of events. I played a lot, started winning a lot.

MANUEL AARON

On making India debut

I think it was the west Asian zonal. When I qualified from the zonal, I had to win the Asian-Australian zonal and that match was held in India. I won that match to become an International Master (Aaron had become the first Arjuna Awardee in the field of chess).

On how he felt becoming an IM

I didn't think it was a great achievement. I was happy I had won. But it didn't improve my life in any way. When I won the nationals in Delhi for the first time, I was working as a temporary clerk in Madras, earning ₹99 including my DA.

Tamil movie Soorarai Pottru, inspired by Captain Gopinath's Air Deccan story, bags five national awards this year. The founder of the low-cost airline discusses his conversations with the actors and his take on the film

MONIKA MONALISA

G R Gopinath, popularly known as Captain Gopinath, was on his regular evening walk on July 22, when he started getting calls with congratulatory messages. It was a pleasant surprise for him that Soorarai Pottru had won five national awards. Unlike many of us who would have cut short the evening walk to celebrate the win, the 70-year-old visionary did some extra rounds that evening.

The movie, which is based on his book 'Simply Fly: A Deccan Odyssey,' won the best actor, best actress, best feature film, best original screenplay, and best background music, dominating the major categories this year. "I am particularly happy because the award is an indication of the essence of the book that I wrote, the stories of Air Deccan, and the possibilities of a new India. This story was the spirit of triumph over adversity. The movie brought out the essence of the book very well. Of course, it is heavily fictionalised, but the story was inspired by my book and the story of Air Deccan," says Gopinath.

He revealed that during the shoot, Suriya, who plays him in the movie, was in touch with him to understand the character. "Suriya did a wonderful job. We had multiple discussions so that he could really get into the skin of the character, and I think the team put in a great effort," he adds.

The movie was released on November 20, 2020. "It was released during the peak of the pandemic, at a time when many people had lost their jobs and the lower-income groups went through tough times. Despite the many things that could go wrong, the movie shows that one should not be cynical while facing adversity. Sometimes, the most courageous of us will also lose hope. The story shows that losing hope is not the answer," says the retired captain of the Indian Army.

Another fact that impressed Gopinath was that the wife's role in the movie, played by Aparna Balamurali, had a strong presence. "Generally, in films, the hero is given more importance than the heroine, but in this case, the director of the movie, Sudha Kongara Prasad, brought in a story for the heroine as well, and the actor portrayed it very well."

The character Bommi, in the movie, was inspired by Gopinath's wife Bhargavi Gopinath, who established a bakery, Bun World in Malleswaram, and has been running it for the past 26 years.

"It is a lot of hard work and it is a great story which complements the hero's story perfectly," he adds.

The 12th Bangalore Queer Film Festival kicked off with a houseful show as it tapped into talent closer home

IN FOCUS

EXPRESS FEATURES

Love is love irrespective of language or gender. As people have started acknowledging these ideas, the Bangalore Queer Film Festival (BQFF) 2022 tried to highlight this through movies. BQFF organised at Max Mueller Bhavan, Indiranagar, curated movies themed on the LGBTQIA+ community from across the globe. BQFF is a community-funded annual event with over 60 films, including documentaries, shorts, and experimental films.

This year's BQFF was all about focusing on filmmakers closer to home. Joshua Muiyia, co-director and volunteer at the festival, said they sent out an open call so that filmmakers could send their works from anywhere in the world. "The festival's focus was to curate films with local and national contexts before looking at the international contexts. Even if we are looking at the international context, we look at the global south like South Asian films before we go into western films. That's the way we curated the festival. There is a particular purpose. International does not always mean American, French or German. International can also mean films from Hong Kong or Pakistan," explains Muiyia, adding that there aren't any specific themes followed in the film festival. "There is no binding theme to the festival. It is a queer film made by a queer filmmaker. There are also silent films and films in Farsi, Chinese, and Punjabi."

The festival also had films from Kashmir, Manipur and unexplored regions in the country. "The festival's focus was also to shine a light not just on big names. We often get asked questions about bigger names associated with the festival. But what we have found in this festival is how lesser-known filmmakers keep returning to our festival with new and creative projects," says Muiyia, adding that the shows ran full house even on weekdays.

This year, the festival marked its 12th year since it got cancelled in 2021 due to Covid. According to Muiyia, the aim with which the festival began has evolved over the years. "I think the goalpost keeps moving. I don't know if we have reached any goal," laughs Muiyia. Further, he adds, "We surely have found better at representing different communities that we know are under-represented. Since it's a community-funded festival, it is also open to donations."

XPRESS FOCUS The Oxford English School Shines with Centums

The Oxford English School, which has maintained a history of 100 per cent first class results for 21 consecutive years in class X ICSE examination, has done it again this year. Eighteen centums in various subjects highlighted the results and another 18 students scored more than 90 per cent. Forty five students scored distinction and the remaining proved themselves with first class marks.

The chairman, S N V L Narasimha Raju, principal Ranjusha and the faculty members congratulated the students on their achievement.

"It is all their hard work and dedication that paid off. The students not only made their parents proud but also the school and the teachers. The Oxford English School is looking forward to continuing with the same spirit and to give excellent results in the future as well," said Narasimha Raju.

The School

The Oxford English School is affiliated to the Council of The Indian School Certificate Examinations, New Delhi and was established in the year 1996-97. The milestone was laid in June of 1998, when the ICSE school started functioning with classes from Nursery to Class VIII. Ever since, the school has grown phenomenally with about 1000 students and 65 teachers currently. The first batch of X standard took the Council Examination in the year 2001. All students passed with distinction and there has been no looking back in academic excellence since then.

FIT BIT

UPAVISTHA DWI JANU CHAKRA (STANDING KNEE CIRCLES POSE)

In Sanskrit, upavistha means 'seated', dwi means 'two', janu means 'knee', and chakra means 'wheel'. This pose is a simple rotation of the knee joints that can be practiced as a part of yoga warm up pose, which prepares the knee joints to be more open and flexible.

STEPS

- First, start in Tadasana (Mountain Pose) and then bend your knees. Place your arms on the respective knees and keep the arms straight.
- Now, making small circles with the bent knees start first by pushing the hips down and out. Initially, start with rotating clockwise moving in the same direction for about 4 times, then repeat in anticlockwise.
- Then, release and come back to the center. After that, repeat the same rotation, but this time do one round clockwise and the other round anticlockwise - doing this for 8 rounds.
- Now, release and relax coming back to the center. An alternative practice of this pose is moving the knees in two different directions simultaneously. That is, when the left moves in an anticlockwise direction, the right moves in a clockwise direction.
- While practicing, keep your face in the forward direction, and keep the entire body relaxed. Inhale and exhale slowly. The circles formed by the knees should follow a relaxed and comfortable range of motion.
- Then, release and relax in Tadasana.

BENEFITS

- Stretches and strengthens the muscles of the leg like the hamstrings, quadriceps, gluteus, hip flexors (pelvic and groin) and lower back.
- Improves the joints in the range of motion.
- More beneficial to those who are recovering from an injury or surgery of the knee or even the hips.
- People with back pain can get relief from this movement.
- Improves blood circulation and strengthens ligaments and tendons.
- During walks, running, climbing, standing, it maintains balance and stability.
- Reduces the stress in the lower back, hips and knees.
- Also reduces tensions in the joints, muscles, tendons, and ligaments.
- Can be done before the sports activity to gain energy.
- Helps regular trekkers and climbers.

LIMITATIONS

Don't practise this asana, if you have a knee or leg injury.
 Those who have spine problems should consult with a yoga expert before practising it.

reluctant body to obey. I was going to be 'out of office' for an indefinite time span but I had to make both homes run seamlessly. I had numerous commitments in namma ooru and trying to juggle them over the week was quite a chore. But a commitment is a commitment, right? I'm a huge Salman Khan fan and his cheesy dialogues have a direct impact on my conversations (please don't judge me!). Anyway back to my 'social' trials and tribulations, I did manage to pack in a hectic week. I caught up with Juhi Kejriwal, a young jewellery designer with a keen eye on contemporary settings, which were both easy on the eye and pocket. Gone are the days when people bought jewellery for 'investment' purposes. That was only a ploy to loosen the purse strings of the 'all powerful menfolk' who would ultimately decide what was 'kosher' for the family. A wife, mother or sister laden with jewellery only enhanced their prestige and had little to do with investment. But now the women who buy jewellery only do so to 'invest' in themselves. Viva the transformation! My bff Alka Dev and I tried on all the super attractive and affordable glitter, bought some and then celebrated over jasmine tea and children and I am grateful for mine. The more my friends realised that I would be away for some time, the more time they wanted to spend together. I gathered a part of my village and went to visit with Manjul Gupta who lost her husband recently. Most of us understood her aching sense of grief. When one is married for so many years, then it's like losing your best friend, soulmate, someone you can be your best and worst with. We reminisced about our lives, our loves and our children. Manjul runs a warm and generous home. Her daughter gently steered her mom's friends to the tea table where she had thoughtfully laid out a feast. Yes! Surely it takes a village.

I needed to leave to play the biggest role of my life, but when Arjun Pandalai called I went to the Taj West End which was hosting a Bobbi Brown cosmetics master class. I was enveloped in a sea of good wishes as my friends were so happy for me.

Enroute to Mumbai, as I sat on my airline seat, surrounded by sneezing and coughing unmasked people...nothing fazed me.

The Universe was being kind and I am blessed!

EMBRACING POSITIVE PARENTING

ASWIN VIJAYRAGHAVAN

It is said that parenting is an art, but it goes much further than that. It's a mix of art, science, intention, and emotion that is, at all times, governed by the powerful rules of affection. I am sure most fellow parents will attest to this - raising a child can be both challenging and gratifying in equal measure but there is little in life that comes close to the adventure that is parenthood.

Today, as a new generation of parents look to raise well-rounded individuals, they are seeking ways to nurture not just the developmental goals of their children, but also their mental and emotional well-being. With parents increasingly embracing scientifically backed models and parenting ethos, 'positive parenting' is emerging as a popular style that is rooted in positive psychology.

Makes for a holistic approach

Positive parenting is a more empathetic style of parenting which involves techniques such as encouragement and problem-solving rather than strictness. Research shows that positive parenting relies on factors like warmth, monitoring children's activities, involvement, and consistency of discipline. The effects of positive parenting are evident when children learn as well. Students who know that mistakes are met with gentleness instead of harsh criticism are more likely to fearlessly explore, experiment and unlock their potential. Further studies examining the outcomes of multiple aspects of positive parenting found that they lead to better health and well-being among both children and parents.

From parents to guides

As a young parent myself, helping my child become independent is an important goal in my own parental journey. Even in my experience with teaching, I often come across young adults who would like to start focusing on what they want to do rather than what is expected of them. Positive parenting exemplifies this idea of equipping children to take charge of their lives. It puts them in the driver's seat thus enabling them to navigate different developmental avenues. Thus, practising positive parenting is a great way to empower children with this sense of independence. Its various aspects can nurture children's self-esteem, creativity, belief in the future, ability to get along with others and a sense of oneness with their environment.

For different age groups

Most parenting styles focus on the early childhood years with few addressing parenting styles for adolescents. While the initial years of a child's life are foundational to their lives, we cannot discount the role of parenting as the child grows up. As children transition from early teens to adolescents, the urge to express themselves creatively and innovatively takes precedence over everything else. This is the most important time for parents to focus on positive parenting styles and encourage the child to explore different ideas to help them grow into their true selves.

Aspects of positive parenting can manifest in different ways as children grow. When they are infants, talking, singing or reading is often the best way to get them accustomed to a parent's voice in a positive way. As they begin schooling, allowing them to help with simple chores and encouraging them to interact with other children can sow the seeds of self-respect. Communicating openly with them as they become pre-teens and encouraging them to join social groups and communities can go a long way in nurturing a sense of right and wrong. And as they enter the crucial teenage years, instilling responsibility by making them feel heard can ensure that they make the right decisions.

While experts continue to examine the benefits of positive parenting, what I find most appealing about it, is that it creates a safe and open platform of communication between the parent and the child. Sensitising children to their own emotions and giving them the security that they will be heard instills, what I think is, an unshakeable trust in the relationship. With an introduction to positive parenting early on at home, young children can grow up to be empathetic and sensitive individuals who come together to inhabit and maintain a kinder world.

Finance guru Bishnu Dhanuka discusses how turbulent times should not disturb real investors, and why women are better investors

FIA MAJUMDAR AND MADHUMITA RAJGOPAL

It's a weekday afternoon when a group of women are listening in rapt attention to the market goings-on. Their mentor, Bishnu Dhanuka, co-founder of Millennium Mams', a non-profit organisation that educates women about financial literacy and where to invest their assets, has one piece of advice: Patience and more patience.

Whether it's the current account deficit, global and domestic inflation or political happenings, Dhanuka believes that no macro factor should really affect investments. "Macro factors like the UK elections don't affect those of us investing from India, we focus on investing in physical, yet intangible assets like brands, copyrights, and patents," says Dhanuka, who believes that women can be better investors than men.

When Dhanuka started the first chapter of Millennium Mams' in Kolkata, 30 years ago, he was concerned that not many women would willingly attend but now, the organisation has about 4,000 members with three chapters in Bengaluru, Mumbai, and Kolkata. "People were not that open-minded back then. So, I thought, let me start this initiative from my house, free of charge. I started teaching women about capital markets, how to read business papers, magazines etc," says Dhanuka. Dhanuka closely follows the finance principles of his guru, Warren Buffett, CEO of Berkshire Hathaway and one of the most successful investors in the world. In fact, some members of the club attended the AGM of Berkshire Hathaway owned by Buffett.

Shalini Manglani, a nutritionist by profession, and investor by passion has been attending Dhanuka's classes for over six years. "Numbers were always daunting, but now I've realised they're not," says Manglani.

Dineet Dadu, president of the Bengaluru chapter of Millennium Mams', has started taking equity investment decisions in her house. "The people that I meet, and the conversations I have after attending these classes changed my perspectives completely. Investing has changed me drastically as a person," she says, adding, "We are always told that factors like the Ukraine war and the UK elections will keep happening around us, but it is most important to be sure of the companies and invest."

TALKING ART

Journey through self-taught art

Ignorance is bliss. Or is it really? For, can one ever be a doctor, cloaked in the ignorance of not having studied medicine? Or an accountant, after years of studying quantum physics? For that matter, can one ever be anyone at all, without being academically trained to be so?

Art, however, doesn't play by these rules. Consider this standard scenario that plays out in every household - the critical moment when career paths have to be decided with a finality that is absolute. The origins of this life-defining moment in current times, can be traced back to the crawling stages in a child's development. Every random activity from then on is keenly watched and the mere act of building a sand castle in the playground is often discussed by the proud parents as a sign of an architect in the making. With these observations steering the decision-making process, it is not surprising that many miss the bus when it comes to finding our true calling.

It is especially so with art. All through school, art is assigned the role of an extracurricular activity, bowing out once the major subjects start flexing their muscles before completely invading every study period that precedes the board exams. The stereotypical impression of art being a hobby for after-school hours is so firmly stamped on the child's mind that it barely presents itself as a career option. After spending many academic years, pursuing approved-by-the-world courses, what if one realises that this avenue of art is what truly excites you? That is the moment when the important question arises - can one be an artist after deviating so far in one's journey?

Rewinding a lifetime to choose art education may not be possible. Being self-taught is also a virtue in art. The climb uphill may take a bit longer, self-doubts and insecurities may plague one all along, but soon, one would discover the sheer joy in not knowing.

This spirit of enquiry, not bound by any theoretical knowledge or suffocated under volumes of logic, can prove to be a liberation too. Ignorance can be the start of finding one's strength in experimentation.

A SHARADHAA

THE release of Su-deep's much anticipated Vikrant Rona made under Shalini Artss banner is right around the corner. The rushes of the film have created a lot of curiosity and hype about director Anup Bhandari's upcoming film. Similarly, the work of art director Shivakumar; music composer Ajaneesh Loknath, and cinematographer William David too have been appreciated by the audience. Here's a quick conversation with the off-screen heroes, who have come together to provide a new experience with Vikrant Rona.

joyed, and they are songs which can be sung along, and I want to go by the latter. That's when we get the repeat listeners. One of the recent and best examples is Ra Ra Rakkamma song, which is still in trend," says Ajaneesh, who added that today a musician has just 5 to 10 seconds to grab the attention of the listeners, and it should work right from scratch to catch their attention and mood. Director Anup Bhandari, who is also a lyricist, helped in Anup's decision-making. "Today lyrics are equally important to match up with the tunes, and Anup, the captain of the ship, knew what will suit best," he says, adding that

TAJMAHAL 2 IS BASED ON A TRUE STORY

Makeup artist-turned-director Devarajkumar's romantic drama also marks his debut as a lead hero

CE FEATURES

MAKEUP artist-turned-filmmaker Devarajkumar is gearing up for the release of Tajmahal 2. This will be the director's fourth project after Danger Zone, Nishabdha2, and Anushka. Devarajkumar has written the story and screenplay for this romantic drama, which will also mark his debut as a lead hero. The film is currently in the post-production stage, and the makers are looking at a September 2 release date.

Speaking to CE, Devaraj said Tajmahal 2 is the title of his film but it has no reference to R Chandru's film, Tajmahal (2008). "It is a romantic drama and is based on a real story that happened in Coimbatore. The incident haunted me a lot, and I intend to present it to the audience through Tajmahal 2."

The film backed by Sri Gangambike Enterprises features Samruddhi Shukla as the female lead. The film's dialogues and lyrics are penned by Manvarshi Navalgund, and the music is scored by Vikram Selva. Venus Murthy has handled the cinematography for the film.
